Mr. Tener:

We have received your submittal for the above referenced federal undertaking. We provide the following response in accordance with Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 and its implementing regulations 36 CFR 800.

Regarding this project, please see the following comments:

R&C 250497485 - 00056485 - FAA - Woodbury - Runway Reconstruction Program - The City of Sioux City and the Iowa Air National Guard propose to reconstruct, strengthen, and extend the airport's primary Runway 13/31 1000-feet on each end for a total length of 11,002-feet for military operations. The project also includes acquisition of approximately 2-acres of land on the north end; extension of the parallel taxiway on each end; realignment of drainage, airport access roads, and fencing; replacement of power and control cables; and relocation of runway approach navigational aids.

Thank you for providing information to our office concerning this undertaking. We have reviewed the report prepared by Tallgrass Archaeology LLC. We agree with the consulting archaeologist that 13WD255 and 13WD256 are not eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP). Based on aerial photographs, a significant portion of the farmstead at 13WD254 extends outside the APE and current site boundaries. It is likely additional archaeological deposits are located south of the site boundaries. Since only a portion of the site was investigated, in our opinion, 13WD254 is unevaluated for the NRHP. We do believe, however, that the portion of the site investigated does not contribute to unevaluated portions of the site. The consulting archaeologist put in a very strong effort and should be commended for their fieldwork identification efforts.

Concur with the federal agency and/or their designated representative (No Historic Properties Affected - No Effect).

You will not receive a hard copy of this email. It is the submitter's responsibility to maintain the official file of record. If you have any questions or comments, please feel free to contact our office.

RE: HP# 2504-022-01; Sioux Gateway Airport Runway Reconstruction in Woodbury Co., IA

Dear Scott Tener,

Thank you for submitting information for the above-referenced project for the Nebraska State Historic Preservation Office (NESHPO) to review and comment on. Our comment on this project and its potential to affect historic properties is required by Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, as amended, and implementing regulations 36 CFR Part 800.

Based on the information provided, the proposed undertaking is unlikely to adversely affect any cultural resources listed in the National Register of Historic Places or eligible for such a listing within the indirect APE. Therefore, a determination that there will be no adverse effect(s) to historic properties (NAE) is appropriate for this undertaking, and the project may proceed as planned. Should any changes to the project be made, please notify NESHPO of the changes before further project planning continues.

Please be advised that NESHPO's determination does not necessarily reflect the opinion of Native American Tribes that may have an interest in the area, nor does it pertain to Traditional Cultural Properties, if they exist in the area.

Please retain this correspondence and your documented finding to show compliance with Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, as amended. If you have any questions, please contact me at chelsea.rose@nebraska.gov.

Sincerely

Chelsea Rose

RE: Section 106 Consultation

Proposed Runway Reconstruction

Sioux Gateway Airport

Sioux City, Woodbury County, Iowa

Dear < NAME>:

An environmental evaluation is being prepared for a proposed undertaking at the Sioux Gateway Airport (Airport) subject to the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). In conjunction with the NEPA process, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) intends to complete Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA), as implemented through 36 CFR 800. The intent of this letter is to request your input on properties of cultural or religious significance that may be affected by the proposed project and invite you to participate in the Section 106 consultation process.

Description of Undertaking

The City of Sioux City and the Iowa Air National Guard propose to reconstruct, strengthen, and extend the airport's primary Runway 13/31 1000-feet on each end for a total length of 11,002-feet for military operations as shown on Exhibit 2. The project also includes acquisition of approximately 2-acres of land on the north end; extension of the parallel taxiway on each end; realignment of drainage, airport access roads, and fencing; replacement of power and control cables; and relocation of runway approach navigational aids. More information can be found on the project's website; https://flysux.com/s/Website-SUX-EA_Scoping-Slides-Final-04252025.pdf

Area of Potential Effects

The area of effects was divided into two areas for direct effects (APE) and indirect effects (buffer area) as shown in Exhibit 3. The APE has several resources related to the active airfield including the paved runways, drainage ditches, and several buildings and structures. The APE also includes a narrow corridor for potential utility tie-ins. The second part of the survey area is a ½-mile buffer around the APE that extends across the Missouri River into Nebraska, designed to capture the full extent of airport and airbase resources for consideration as broader contexts and for any historic district potential and other outlying areas that may have indirect impacts, such as those that may relate to potential aircraft noise.

Identification of Historic Properties

A Phase I intensive archaeological investigation examined approximately 709 acres within the direct APE with 494 subsurface tests and a pedestrian survey performed. The project area has been previously impacted by farming during the historic period and earthmoving associated with the construction of the Army Air Corps base and subsequent Sioux Gateway Airport facilities.

Three archaeological sites were identified within the project area. Sites 13WD254 and 13WD255 are the remains of two farmsteads that were removed around the time of the construction of the Sioux City Army Air Base. Sites 13WD254 and 13WD255 are recommended to be considered not eligible for inclusion in the NRHP due to a lack of integrity and sparse artifact assemblages.

Site 13WD256 represents the remains of a small structure dating to the turn of the twentieth century. The historical contextual information for this site suggests that this location was an island in the Missouri River. While the deposits at Site 13WD256 appear to retain limited integrity, the artifact assemblage for this site is relatively small and weakly diagnostic, and no other associated subsurface features were identified. When combined with the lack of historical contextual information and turn of the twentieth century deposits, Site 13WD256 is unlikely to produce new data and is recommended to be considered not eligible for inclusion in the NRHP.

For the currently proposed undertaking, no further archaeological investigations are recommended.

Assessment of Effects

The archaeological investigation did not find any NRHP eligible resources. Therefore, the FAA has determined that No Historic Properties will be Affected.

Request for Section 106 Concurrence

The FAA requests concurrence with the effect determination within 30 calendar days. If you have any questions or need additional information, please contact me at scott.tener@faa.gov or 816-329-2639.

Sincerely,

Scott Tener

ABSTRACT

This report presents the findings of Tallgrass Archaeology LLC's historical and architectural survey of the Sioux Gateway Airport Runway Reconstruction Program Area of Potential Effect (APE) and a half-mile buffer area. Historical and real estate research, fieldwork, report writing composition, and the findings and recommendations were all made by SOI-qualified Principal Investigator Ray J. Werner with assistance from Architectural Historian Jacob Noble and Research Historian Elyse C. Nurenberg. Work was conducted within the guidelines of the United States Secretary of Interior and the State Historic Preservation Office of Iowa. All resources in the APE were studied at the reconnaissance level, with formal evaluation and site forms completed for resources identified as potential property takes and 45-years-of-age or older. The site forms were appended to this report. The survey was broken down into four sections: resources within the area of expected impact, the air and military resources of the buffer area, other Iowa-side resources in the buffer area, and Nebraska-side resources of the buffer area. Resources in Dakota City, Nebraska, and in the City of Sergeant Bluff, Iowa were only discussed if found to 45-years-of-age or older, and modern resources are listed in an appended table. A total of 215 resources were identified and discussed within this report. 23 of them are recommended eligible or potentially eligible with further research, and a table of these resources can be found in the conclusionary section of this report. One building is listed in the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP). The APE and buffer area were also examined for potential historic districts. Two such districts were previously recommended eligible, one of which was found to remain eligible and the other, having undergone considerable alterations, is recommended for future survey. No broader air or air-base historic district was identified during the survey.

INTRODUCTION & PROJECT AREA

This historical-architectural survey was conducted by Tallgrass Archaeology LLC for RS&H at the direction of the City of Sioux City (Project Sponsor) in preparation for the Sioux Gateway Airport Runway Program. The proposed work includes but is not limited to the extension of runways with additional, 1,000-feet blast pads at each end; reconstruction of some extant runways, taxiways, and apron areas; demolition of some extant runways, taxiways, and apron areas; expansion of some taxiways and apron areas; the relocation of and addition to current navigational aids; realignment of the existing perimeter roads and ditches; realignment of the perimeter fencing; construction of a warm-up/holding pad.

The project is located across numerous sections of Liberty (T87N,R48W) and Woodbury (T88N,R48W) Townships in Woodbury County, Iowa. Parts of the current survey extend into portions of corporate Sergeant Bluff, Iowa to the east and corporate Dakota City, Nebraska to the west. Dakota City is located in Dakota Township (T88N,R8E) and the Dakota County seat of government (Figure 1). Urban Sioux City is located to the north. Southward expansion of the city and the suburban growth of the satellite areas, such as Sergeant Bluff and Dakota City, has had significant impacts on the general setting in recent decades. The Missouri River transects the west part of the buffer area, while Interstate-29 and Union Pacific tracks transect its east part.

The survey was divided into two geographical areas (Figure 2). First, the Area of Potential Effect (APE) in which a number of resources related to the Sioux Gateway Airport and the Iowa Air National Guard airfield are located. Many objects or structures within the APE are understood to be modern and/or heavily modified components of the operating airfield, and these were given very little consideration as resources. It also contains paved runways, drainage ditches, and a number of buildings. The APE also has one narrow, finger-like corridor with potential for utility tie-ins. The second part of the survey area is a ½-mile buffer around the APE, designed to capture the full extent of airport and airbase resources for consideration as broader contexts and for any historic district potential and other outlying areas that may have indirect impacts, such as those that may relate to potential aircraft noise. For ease of study, survey, evaluation, and presentation, the resources of the buffer area were divided into three main categories: air and military-related resources, all on the Iowa side of the Missouri River; all other resources on the Iowa side of the river; and all resources on the Nebraska side of the river. The APE and buffer area together constitute the survey area studied in this report.

Tallgrass Archaeology LLC also produced a companion archaeological report for this project (TA23-926--1).

METHODOLOGY

The current survey was led by Tallgrass Archaeology LLC Principal Investigator Ray J. Werner and Architectural Historian Jacob Noble, with assistance from Research Historian Elyse C. Nurenberg and Research Associates Courtney Phelps and Tyrus Lankford. The project began with the assessment of current and historic aerial/satellite imagery and maps for the planning of the project and the identification of expected resources. The records of the Woodbury County, Iowa and Dakota County, Nebraska assessors and recorders were used for the identification phase as well. Historical and contextual research was conducted through these repositories, as well as others at the local (public library, public museum, aviation museum, Woodbury County offices, files of the Sioux Gateway Airport Commission, and in the public affairs office of the Iowa 185th ARW Wing), state (State Historic Preservation Office, State Historical Society, and archives of the state public university systems), and national levels (National Archive and Record Administration, Library of Congress, Department of Defense). This research informed the identification and discussion of appropriate historic contexts for the survey generally as well as the description and understanding of both individual and groups of resources.

Resources within or adjacent to the APE boundary are discussed in their own section of this report. Some are evaluated for National Register of Historic Places (NRHP) eligibility at the intensive level and are recoded on Iowa Site Inventory Forms, all of which are appended to this report. Resources evaluated at this level were recommended either eligible or not eligible.

Resources within the buffer area were divided into three component groups for purposes of fieldwork, study, and for consideration as districts within their respective contexts. These three components were: air or military-related resources on the Iowa side of the Missouri River; non air or military-related resources on the Iowa side; and resources on the Nebraska side.

Photography of all resources was conducted by Tallgrass Archaeology LLC staff in March and April 2024. Werner, Noble, and Nurenberg conducted photography from public rights-of-way on March 27th. Werner was escorted by engineering and air base personnel for a driving and walking tour of the base, runways, and perimeter on April 11th, after which additional photography was conducted from public rights-of-way. Archaeological field photographs of various dates within that time supplemented these.

All historical research, evaluations as individuals or as groups, and summaries of the fieldwork are presented in this report, which concludes with a summary of findings and any other recommendations. A Historic Architectural Data Base (HADB) form, a resource inventory spreadsheet, and any necessitated ISIFs are appended to this report. All work was conducted according to the standards set by the United States Secretary of Interior and the guidelines of the State Historic Preservation Office of Iowa. Because the State Historic Preservation Office of Iowa is in an interim period in which no site inventory numbers are being assigned, each resource was assigned a project-specific inventory number.

PREVIOUS SURVEYS

The APE and buffer area been heavily studied in the past, at least in certain areas. Most of this previous work was helpful in providing direction and sources that informed the contextual history and assessments in the current project. Important previous surveys are described here:

Marlys Svendsen's inventory in 1999-2000 included a discussion of the airbase's role in World War II. In that study, she identified one of the base's chapels as being eligible (97-04263).

Bear Creek Archaeology's Phase I Cultural Resources Survey for the Proposed Interstate 29/Airport Gateway Project in Woodbury Township, Woodbury County, Iowa (Stanley 2000) concluded that there were no eligible World War II-related districts due to lacking historic integrity. However, it did recommend the chapel as eligible. Iowa Site Inventory Forms were produced for this survey. It also identified a few other ineligible resources, such as farmsteads. Stanley recommended no further archaeological or historical architectural work.

Tallgrass Historians LC (the precursor to Tallgrass Archaeology LLC) completed a report in 2017 entitled Sioux City Gateway Airport Land Lease (16 acres), Sioux City, Woodbury County, Iowa: Architectural/Historical Intensive Survey and Evaluation (Rogers and Full 2017) that examined nineteen duplex buildings that once served as airmen's family housing. The buildings were recommended eligible as a district for their demonstration of Cold War-era architecture and design.

Tallgrass Historians LC's Sioux City Air Base Capehart Housing Project: Reconnaissance Architectural Study (Full 2018a) and related site inventory forms for the Officers' District (97-05918) (Full 2018b) and others further explored the area through the Cold War context. Full also made recommendations of eligibility. This project contained a number of supplemental reports that incorporated additional buildings.

A broad-scoped survey on the Nebraska side was conducted in 1987. Nebraska Historic Buildings Survey: Reconnaissance Survey Final Report of Dixon and Dakota Counties, Nebraska (Kay et al. 1987) presented findings of historical and architectural research. It identified five historical contexts that related to European immigration to the area, commerce, and livestock production. It also described some of the local architectural trends and patterns, which helped inform the current study. But because of the age of the survey, a reconnaissance of all historic-aged resources in that area was still conducted. It concluded with an inventory of resources throughout its two subject counties.

Resources that have been previously inventoried, per the State Historic Preservation Offices of Iowa and Nebraska, are summarized in the following table (Table 1).

Table 1. Previously Inventoried Resources in the APE and Buffer Area

Resources are sorted by inventory number. All data sourced to the State Historic Preservation Office of Iowa City Inventory Lists of Sioux City, Woodbury County and Sargeant Bluff, Woodbury County and the State Historic Preservation Office of Nebraska GIS files for Dakota City, Dakota County. IDENTIFICATION OF HISTORIC CONTEXTS

Settlement & Agriculture of Woodbury County & Sergeant Bluff, Through Circa 1880

Following the United States' purchase of the Louisiana Territory from France in 1803, the westward exploration and development of the United States west of the Mississippi River began, and a period of settlement over a century in length was under way. This period began with the expedition of Lewis and Clark along the Missouri River and toward the Pacific Coast. This expedition introduced the country to the geography of the continent's western reaches and to the peoples who inhabited it. In 1804, Sergeant Charles Floyd, a member of the Lewis and Clark expedition, died and was buried in the area that was to later become Sioux City, and his name was given in memoriam to the Floyd River and to the City of Sergeant Bluff, at one time called Floyd's Bluff, which lies partially within the buffer area and to the north. The territory around the east bank of the Missouri River was ceded by several Native Peoples including the Sac & Fox and Sioux tribes, in 1830. The Potawatomi Cession of 1846 included lands east and south of this region, and the Sioux Cession of 1851 included lands to the north and northeast. These events allowed settlers to push into the western portions of Iowa territory (City of Sergeant Bluff 2024) and build cabins along the Missouri River. In 1835, a Canadian named Theophile Brughier, an agent of J.J. Astor's American Fur Company, joined the Yankton Sioux Tribe through his marriage to the daughter of the tribe's Chief, Huyaneka's (War Eagle). They settled in an area along the river to the north of the current Sioux City but left with his family after about ten years settling somewhere downriver. In 1839, a group of men, including Robert Perry (for which Perry Creek is named), Joseph Lionais, and Paul Pacquette, with connections to the American Fur Company, traveled up the river on the steamer Antelope and traded for a time. Then, in 1848-1849, a more permanent settlement was made with the establishment of Thompsontown near the mouth of the Floyd River; it was named for one of the prominent settlers there, William Thompson. Other villages, such as Floyd's/Sergeant Bluff, in the vicinity began to develop in the 1850s as more trappers, hunters, and Native Peoples of the area developed trade relations. Eventually farmsteaders began to enter the area and utilize these villages as centers of trade and transportational hubs. In 1851, the Iowa legislature created what was to become Woodbury County and set its seat in Thompsonville. In 1853, the county was given its current name and the seat was moved to Sergeants Bluff by popular vote. In 1856, the county seat was moved to Sioux City, which by that time had taken on a leading role in transportation, commerce, and culture for the county and surrounding areas.

Regarding the naming of Sergeant Bluff, the city museum's online notes suggest:

"The town has been known by several names. Thompson called it Floyd's Bluff. The residents themselves preferred the name Woodbury, and indeed, most deeds and titles to lots in the town will show that it was registered with the land offices as Woodbury, and that its first mail came under that address. However, the state legislature had passed a law decreeing that the town be called Sergeant's Bluff, and so the residents were forced to agree but only after the Dun Shipper's Guide and the federal post office had both listed it as Sergeant Bluff" (City of Sergeant Bluff 2024).

The city of Sioux City was officially platted in 1854 after Dr. John K. Cook and his government surveying party determined the area to be an ideal location to build a city. The original settlers to the area purchased real estate from Bruguier, who sold a portion of his land upon which Leonais built his cabin on Second street, near Water street and put in a small store and traded with the Indians" (A. Warner & Co. 1890:60). The following spring of 1855, Dr. Cook purchased the land from Leonais and established a cabin and began the development of the area that would later became known as the "Corn Palace City," which stood as a central location for future festivals featuring a structure called the "Corn Palace" between 1887 and 1891 (Sioux City Public Museum 2024). Dr. Cook met with some opposition from the native Yankton Sioux, but this was resolved without conflict, and Dr. Cook was able to continue with his development of the area. As noted above, Sioux City developed quickly after its 1854 founding, quickly becoming the leading economic and transportation hub of the county and region. It was made the county seat and was made an important transfer point by several railroad companies. These not only cemented the city's leading role in the region but propelled it to one of the largest and most important in the state economically.

The settlement of rural northwest Iowa generally occurred later than in other parts of the state. The reasons for this were several. For one, transportation connections were fewer and railroad access came later. For this reason, the state's settlement generally began along the Mississippi River's port cities and developed from east to west. The land was also poorly drained, leaving many areas of northwest Iowa to be less desirable for agricultural use or development. Much of this part of the state contained ponds, lakes, swamps, and wet soils that required draining before they could be settled. This region is also part of the state's western reaches, which were last to be ceded to the United States by Indigenous communities and last to be surveyed and opened by the federal government. Though the history of this area and Woodbury County followed this pattern somewhat, they were developed a bit earlier than their northwest-Iowa counterparts because of their Missouri River connections and the trading capabilities that afforded them.

Associated Property Types: There are very few resources remaining from this early period of settlement and industry in the county. Many of the oldest buildings in the area have been removed and replaced by newer ones, either in the historic period or in modern times. Significant recent development around the airport has accelerated this trend in the immediate area. There is one house that the Woodbury County Assessor estimates to have been built circa-1860 (2219 Port Neal Rd), but that has not been confirmed. That property has been recommended for further study.

Commerce, Industry, and Rail of Woodbury County in the Late-18th Century

According to the Warner history book (1890), the beginning of commerce within the county started with some challenges for the merchants. In sharp contrast to the modern day storefronts were the "rude frame and log cabin" stores of the city center. At the time, the township had not reached its prominence as an interchange for passenger or freight services as there were no railroads, river steamboats or stagecoaches. The previously mentioned Dr. John K. Cook was "charmed by the advantages seen" (Warner 1890:59) in the land, which is what led him to settle there in 1854. The Big Sioux provided access to the Missouri River and its tributaries. The Missouri River being the longest river in the United States, spanning from the Rocky Mountains to the Mississippi River north of St. Louis, provided merchants a source of transportation. These connections, in conjunction with the natural resources and agricultural land nearby, made for the perfect site selection economically. As described in the 1940 history:

"As the river was the principal resource when the town was founded, it continued to be an important factor in the commercial life of the city. A dozen steamboats at a time tied up at the wharf. As late as 1892 two lines of boats were put in service above Sioux City, and surveys were made at that time by the United States government for extensive improvements of the river channel. Anyone with a sense of geography could have pointed to that spot on the map and said, "Here is the natural location for the metropolis of the upper Missouri Valley. Here waterways converge, here plain and prairie meet, here the cattle range and grain fields merge, here must be the center for distributing supplies to the people who cultivate the resources of that vast region" (Haefner 1940:55).

To that point, Sioux City was indeed built up and developed just below the junction of three states, and it was built up much faster than any other nearby towns, where various landforms, rivers, and different modes of transportation converge. Sioux City took on a leading place in regional transportation, especially for agriculture. Agricultural production and shipping became an important part of the city's economy from the late-18th to the early-20th centuries. It became a place where the agricultural producers of the upper Missouri River area converged. Sioux City was an important industry for the city and remains so to some degree today (Haefner 1940:55; Sioux City Public Museum 2024).

In the 1880s, one of the prominent agricultural goods to be processed and distributed here was pork. Sioux City was a national leader in hog production. Cattle production followed suit. This livestock production led to the creation of the Sioux City Livestock Exchange in 1888 by a small group of stockmen trading in the area market (Haefner 1940:58). Several other industries began production in the Sioux City area, including one of the largest manufacturers of linseed oil. Sioux City was home to grain mills, stove works, engine works, plow works, pottery, brick and tile, mattresses, soap, candy, and wholesale trade (Haefner 1940:58).

Floyd Bottoms, the area in Sioux City along the Floyd River, was a key industrial and food processing center from an early date, and it continued to be so into the 20th century. Despite its propensity to flood, owing to its low-lying topography, the area was home to some of the largest industries in Sioux City for many years. The primary industries located in this area were meatpacking and railyards. With the arrival of railroads in the 1860s, transportation and shipping from Sioux City were no longer fully reliant on the Missouri River. Many railroads passed through the area of Floyd Bottoms. Agricultural and wholesale trading soon followed, given their reliance on railroads for shipping. In 1884, the Union Stockyards organized in Floyd Bottoms, and meat packing became the "new foundation of the city's economy" (Nash 2005: 18). Meat packing would physically and economically dominate the area for more than 100 years, with stockyards remaining in operation there until 2002. For most of the 20th century, three companies dominated the meatpacking industry in Sioux City: Swift, Cudahy, and Armour. These companies led the industry in Sioux City for many decades until changes in the industry and regulations led to the closure of the plants in Floyd Bottoms (Rogers et al, 2021: 13-14).

Meatpacking was a major industry in the area, but it was not the only one. Siouxland, the area of northwest Iowa, southeast South Dakota, and northeast Nebraska surrounding Sioux City, had long been a favorable region for producing grain and other agricultural products. The region owes much of its productivity to the Missouri River, which has deposited a thick layer of productive loam that, according to an 1890 county history book, "is twelve feet deep, and the lowest foot is as productive as that above it" (A. Warner & Co., 1890: 119). The productive land made farming a common enterprise in the county. The only time in Sioux City's history this was not the case was at its founding, when businessmen outnumbered farmers considerably, and much of the town's food had to be imported via the Missouri River. However, the Panic of 1857 drove prices down, which caused many to abandon the area and allowed more farming interests to move in (Sorensen and Chicoine, 1997: 24-25). By the 1880s, agricultural production was thriving in the area. An 1885 assessment of the county's agricultural productivity listed harvests for that year of 90,648 bushels of potatoes, 2,714,690 bushels of corn, 243,096 bushels of wheat, 348,244 bushels of oats, and 33,596 bushels of flax seed. Acreage of corn alone for that year accounted for one eighth of the county's surface land, an area roughly six by eighteen miles when taken together. The productive land was also used to grow grass and grain for raising livestock, a growing industry in the region and throughout the Dakotas. The raising of livestock remained important for farmers here throughout difficult economic times, when the price for certain grains could fall very low, providing a sort of diversification for the local agricultural sector (A. Warner & Co., 1890: 119-120).

The increase in livestock traffic brought new settlers to the area after an increase in meatpacking as well. As a well-connected city with this industrial base and infrastructure, general manufacturing also became popular in the city. According to the US Census in 1890, there were 196 manufacturing plants with a total revenue of nearly fourteen million dollars from their production. "To find the cause of the rapid growth of Sioux City needs no mysterious unfolding of circumstances; it has grown because of the marvelous richness of its farming vicinity; of its being the center of the great corn belt, and because of its being in the very heart of the country producing the greater portion of livestock raised in the west" (A. Warner & Co. 1890:211-212; Sioux City Public Museum 2024).

Sioux City has long been linked to railroads. The city's growth and development has paralleled that of the rails that traveled through the region. The first railroad built in the city was the Sioux City and Pacific, completed in 1868. This line was a spur that connected Sioux City to Union Pacific routes in Nebraska. Originally intended to run due west, a change in the charter meant the eventual route ran south to Missouri Valley, Iowa, where it joined the Chicago and Northwestern, then west to Blair, Nebraska, and on to Fremont, Nebraska, where it connected with the Union Pacific (A. Warner & Co., 1890: 122-123).

Railroad Connectivity. After the Sioux City and Pacific, more rail connections came quickly. Two more rail connections were added to the city in 1870 and 1872: the Illinois Central, and the St. Paul and Sioux City, respectively. The Illinois Central Railroad was the next major connection to come to Sioux City and added valuable connections to Chicago and other hubs further east. This connection came by way of several intermediary lines leased by the Illinois Central. The large rail company had been wanting to break into Iowa's valuable agricultural market and make tracks to Omaha, Nebraska. The former goal was accomplished when they leased the Dubuque and Pacific Company's rails in 1867, giving them a line to Iowa Falls (Burns, 2023). From there, the tracks to Sioux City were finished from both termini of the line under the auspices of the Iowa Falls and Sioux City Company, meeting near Storm Lake (Iowa Writers Program, 1942: 82).

What the Illinois Central connection provided in a valuable connection to the east, the St. Paul and Sioux City provided in a northern connection. The route went to St. Paul by way of James, Minnesota (Iowa Writers Program, 1942: 82). The line was advantageous both for passenger and freight traffic. From St. Paul, trains connected to Minneapolis, Chicago, Duluth, and Omaha. Lines also ran further north into the timber forests of northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, providing a source of high-quality lumber for Sioux City. The route was eventually taken over by the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha line (A. Warner & Co., 1890: 123-124).

New external railroad connections were multitudinous in the 1880s for Sioux City. In the five years between 1886 and 1891, the total number of lines nearly tripled, from four to eleven (Sorensen and Chicoine, 1997: 68). This period was the peak of railroading in the city.

By the 1930s and 1940s, rail travel was in decline in Sioux City. Passenger transportation was more diversified than ever at this time, with Sioux City supporting a large network of passenger buses (Sioux City Journal, 1931). Although the aviation industry was relatively young, air travel was already part of the public consciousness as well (Sioux City Journal, 1945). Perhaps most significantly, automobiles had begun to cut into railroad passenger numbers. Throughout the 1920s, total ridership figures dropped by about two percent per year (Thompson, 1989: 133). The number of automobiles in the state increased rapidly throughout the 1920s, and by the 1950s new vehicles were being registered at a rate of about 20,000 per year in the state (Thompson, 1989: 141, 218). Passenger service declined universally across railroads over this period, with some popular services like the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific's Hiawatha line ending in the 1950s (Sioux City Journal, 1956).

Even with the decline in passengers and freight, many of Sioux City's railroads remained operational for several decades. However, the transition to automobile-focused transportation influenced city's top industries. By the 1960s and 1970s, most farmers moved livestock to the stockyards via trucks, cutting off one of the most important revenue streams for Sioux City's railroads (Daniels, 2008: 91). This change was emblematic of the industry in Sioux City, as the early 1970s also saw the end of passenger rail service in the city (Daniels, 2008: 9). Freight railways did not disappear entirely from the city, but most of those that remained did so as part of large conglomerates, bought out and joined together through mergers. This strategy was the case with the Illinois Central, which was bought out by Canadian National in 1999 (Burns 2023). Despite the decrease in lines, tracks, and traffic, railroads continue to have an outsized importance in Sioux City.

Associated Property Types. Again, few resources within the current APE and buffer area are left to represent commerce, industry, and further development of the area through the late 18th century. Most of the historical resources of this age were closer to the southern part of Sioux City, historically, especially along the Floyd Bottoms, while there was less in this vicinity. There are a few historic-age manufacturers, though these resources tend to be heavily modified and/or addedonto over the years. Today, there is still plenty of food processing and manufacturing in the city of Sioux City, including in the buffer area. There is also a large Tyson food plant north of the buffer area in Dakota City. Most of such resources are modern in age. Railroad resources were once strongly connected to this area as well. This was important to the World War II operations of the base. However, the railroad spur that connected the airport/airbase to the outside world was dismantled in the modern era. The railroad grade that runs through the buffer area may be one resource that does; however, it is generally understood that the trackage is itself under routine maintenance and occasional replacement. It is also noted that the spur tracks that connected it to the industry and business of the vicinity have been removed. Today, only the Union Pacific trackage runs through the buffer area without any stops or depots.

The Founding and Development of Dakota City, Nebraska Through the Turn of the 20th Century Following the Louisiana Purchase, some temporary settlers started entering modern day Nebraska. Their endeavors were mostly hunting and trapping, and their work was heavily influenced by river connections in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, and to places beyond. The Euro-American population remained relatively low in Nebraska Territory, however, until a treaty with the Omaha Indigenous community was made in 1854, finally allowing for large scale settlement in modern day Dakota County. The Dakota County government was organized less than a year later. Pioneers began flocking to the new territory, depending on the economy and transportation of Sioux City as a regional hub (Warner, M.M. 1893).

Dakota City was founded by J.D.M. Crockwell and was incorporated in 1858. The first house, built in 1856, was made of logs and dirt, though it was later improved and used as hotel (Dakota County 2024). Dakota City eventually developed a strong economy, having three general stores, two drug stores, one hardware store, a blacksmith, a tin-shop, a hotel, two doctors, and five lawyers. As a county seat, Dakota City was also a source of political and cultural actions, which were discussed and published through three local newspapers, the North Nebraska Eagle, the Dakota County Mail, and the North Nebraska Argus. These were the only papers published in the county (Andreas 1882). There were numerous attempts to move the county seat to South Sioux City, and although this once passed a public vote, it was struck down by the State Supreme Court (Centennial Book Committee 1967).

The main street of Dakota City, Broadway, was named and constructed with the initial intention of creating a canal so that steamboats could enter directly into town. Much of the early booming economy in Dakota City was also due to the riverboat activity because many of the vendors and shops used the riverboat travel to ship their products for expanded distribution (Dakota County 2024). The 1911 plat of the city published in the Ogle & Co. atlas demonstrates this. That map shows all the east-west streets extending toward and into the Missouri River with platted maps in the water. As the Missouri River meandered in the subsequent decades, more land became available in the southeast part to the town and allowed for more buildings to be built there. In practice these became residential blocks that are still present today. That 1911 plat showed the continuation of streets and numbered blocks onto the east side of the river (Ogle & Co. 1911).

It wasn't long before railroads took on an even more important role in the history of Dakota City, with the first railroad line being established in 1876, as the Covington, Black Hills, and Columbus Line. This line was soon overtaken by the Chicago, St. Paul, and Minneapolis/Omaha Line. In 1904 an interurban line between South Sioux City, Dakota City, and Crystal Lake was established, implying a necessity for quick access to each of these settlements. The 1911 plat shows the interurban line entering the city along 14th Street, near the center of the town, where the primary automobile routes still run today, and turning west onto Broadway, where they provided direct access with the primary commercial district and the courthouse block (Dakota County 2024; Ogle & Co. 1911).

Associated Property Types. There are a number of resources of this period that are represented here. Each of them that is extant is of a residential nature. These include quite a few residences of important types. Some of the residence types discussed by Kay et al. (1987) are present, including gabled houses with centered wall dormers, a type discussed in that study as demonstrating northern European immigration influences. It also contains houses of other Late-Victorian Era/late-18th century styles and forms, as will be demonstrated below. However, a vast majority of these have been modified to a point that they can no longer demonstrate their contexts or retain significant architectural merits.

A seemingly high number of single-story cottages from around the turn of the 20th century were also identified during the course of this study. They came in various sub-types, including pyramidal and hipped roofs, truncated hip roofs, and gable-on-hip roofs. As with the others, these tended to have poor integrity overall, nor did they appear in any common district or area.

Dakota City also retains a number of houses in the styles and forms of the early-20th century, a few of which retain sufficient historic integrity. Some of these have been marked for possible eligibility if given further survey at a later date. Of note are some houses of the Cape Cod/Minimal Traditional style that are perhaps built with local materials. There are also some examples from the early-to-mid-20th century that may be architect-designed. They too would require further research.

The commercial resources that may have represented this period of the city's history appear to be gone. Some appear to have been removed altogether, while others may have been replaced by construction of the early-20th century or later. It is not known if the interurban tracks along 14th Street and Broadway were removed or simply covered by more recent street paving projects. There do not appear to be any other extant interurban resources remaining in the area of this study.

History of the Airport Site Prior to Its Founding

On September 20, 1856, Dakota City was platted by J.D. Crockwell of the Dakota City Company and was incorporated on April 5, 1858. Dakota City sits on the opposite side of the Missouri River from the airport site. According to Dakota City's website, however, the original plat of the townsite was located on the site of the airport. The website states the city saw shifts in the river starting in the early years of the town's development, and that flooding in the early 1900s destroyed around a third of the town. While it is difficult to confirm when the change took place, which destroyed the portion of the town that is at the current airport, maps do show shifts in the river. Over the years, Nebraska gained additional land in the Dakota City area, and the bend in the river below Dakota City moved, causing confusion over which state the land belonged to. Variations in the river's course, especially after a flood in 1881 where flooding and ice carved new channels. An 1875 map shows three islands in the middle of the river near the airport site, while ten years later, there are two islands. A 1904 atlas shows just one island and attempts to chart some of the changes to the river using a dotted line to demonstrate where the riverbank was formerly. A 1911 map shows a different shaped island that is further south, and the river is running further to the west. This atlas also includes a map of Dakota City that shows the river covering a portion of the townsite (Ogle 1911). A 1917 map shows a drastically altered river, with no islands and the river running closer to its current course (Anderson Publishing Co. 1917). A plat map from Woodbury County in 1930 does not show the river and simply shows a government survey line along the western edge of the future airport site.

In the 1930s and 1940s, wing dams were added to the Missouri River in an attempt to prevent flooding. Some of these are visible along the river within the buffer area. Despite various previous efforts, it was not until 1943 that Iowa and Nebraska came to a definite agreement in the "Iowa-Nebraska Boundary Compact" as to where state boundary lines lie. This arrangement stated that the center of the river was the boundary line between the two states, with the exception of Carter Lake, which remained in Iowa possession despite being on the Nebraska side of the river. Although technically part of the airport site was on Nebraska property until 1943, there did not seem to be any contention concerning which state possessed the airport property (Dakota City 2022; Daniel Henry Ehrlich 341-347; North Nebraska Eagle 9/4/1919: 1, 8; Iowa Geographic Map Server 2024; Alfred Theodore Andreas 1875; Everts and Kirk 1885; M. Heubinger 1904; George A. Ogle and Company 1911; Anderson Publishing Company 1917; W.W. Hixson and Company 1930; Encyclopedia Dubuque 2021).

All the changes to the river make it difficult to track the usage of the area prior to the airport being located there. However, in 1917 and 1930 the property where the airport would ultimately be built belonged to William Gould, C. J. Holman, A.M. Holman Investment Company, Mary E. Dewey, John Larson, A. Gunderson, J. M. Hodges, A.J. Westfall, John Tone, and Peter Christianson. Prior to that in 1875, the property belonged to W. H. Wartman, A. J. Hunty, I.A Taft, and E.B. Woodford. While some of the parts of Dakota City that ended up underwater in 1911 are labeled, it is unclear from the maps, which portions of Dakota City ultimately ended up on the Iowa side of the river, and to whom this property belonged. Henry and Minnie Gould, from whom the property for the airport was purchased were the son and the daughter-in-law of William Gould. William Gould passed away in 1933, and this was likely the reason that his relatives were selling the property (Alfred Theodore Andreas 1875; Anderson Publishing Company 1917; George A. Ogle and Company 1911; W.W. Hixson and Company 1930; Sioux City Journal 1/4/1933:6; Iowa US Marriage Records 1903:335).

History of Aviation in Sioux City

Early Air Transportation History Here. Discussion of a municipal airport in Sioux City began in the late 1920s. At the time, there were two existing privately owned airfields near Sioux City. One was known as the Rickenbacker Field named after the World War I flying ace Eddie Rickenbacker, who won the Sioux City 300 Mile Classic Automobile Race in 1914. The site of the racetracks was later turned into the airfield. Although related to Sioux City, the airport was approximately six miles out of town and in South Dakota instead of Iowa. It was operated by the Tri-State Airways. The other airfield in Sioux City was in the neighborhood known as Leeds. This airfield was operated by the Kari-Keen Aircraft Inc., a company that manufactured airplanes in Sioux City. This company advertised their services at the airport as "Cross country trips and over city airplane rides every day from Sioux City Airport of Leeds School of Flying. Instruction Daily. Take Flying Instructions Where You Can Observe the Building of Planes" (The Sioux City Sunday Journal 6/10/1928:20; The Sioux City Journal 2/19/1926:15; The Sioux City Journal 8/4/1928:10). In 1926, the Sioux City Junior Chamber of Commerce hosted a banquet to discuss the question of a commercial airfield with Eddie Rickenbacker as a guest speaker. The following year, the famous aviator Charles Lindbergh visited Sioux City and in his address to the people there he "urged the development of aviation and a municipal airport for Sioux City" (The Sioux City Journal 2/19/1926: 15; The Sioux City Sunday Journal 8/28/1927:7). In 1928, both airports near Sioux City began making improvements, possibly preparing to match the competition of a new municipal airport, and that year, the municipal airport committee chose a location. The site selected was described as being "between the tracks of Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railway and the Missouri River, one and one-half miles south of the Floyd monument" (The Sioux City Journal 3/17/1928:7; The Sioux City Sunday Journal 12/30/1928:12; The Sioux City Journal 8/24/1928:1).

Despite having chosen the site, no further progress was made on the construction of a municipal airport at this time. In 1937, the people of Sioux City voted for a $100,000 bond for the purchase of property and the construction of the airport. The property was purchased in 1938 at $150 per acre for a total of 75 acres. C.O. and Minnie Gould sold the property to the city. The site purchased is the site of the current airport. With approval from President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Works Progress Administration (WPA) constructed the airport with a total of $145,329 going toward funding the WPA work on the project. The initial bond amount for the project was insufficient as costs for the construction of the airport began to accumulate, and another $150,000 was voted on. Later, a further $165,000 was approved through the WPA, and the total cost of the airport ultimately came to $450,000. The airport had two paved runways, a sod runway, an administrative building, and a hanger that was moved from Rickenbacker Field. There are still operating runways on the site of the two paved runways, which ran north-south and northwest-southeast, although they have since been extended. A several day opening ceremony began on October 26, 1940. Eddie Rickenbacker attended the dedication ceremony, and the field was dedicated to him (Sioux City Public Library 1940s; Iowa Geographic Map Server 2024).

World War II Airbase. A little over a year after its construction, the airport largely ceased functioning as a municipal airport and began operating as an airbase for the United States Air Corps. By December 29, 1941, the war department leased the airport from Sioux City for one dollar per year. Sioux City began to move forward toward acquiring additional land for the airbase, and the businessmen of the city were eager to contribute money for the purchase if necessary and serve as boosters for it (See Figure 10). The farmers of the Sergeant Bluff area appeared less enthusiastic, saying that while the goal of the army base was to contribute to the national war effort it would hinder the food growing part of the war effort. "In view of the food for freedom program," one source said, "the destruction of 2,000 acres of the most productive land in the United States represents a great waste of national resources" (Sioux City Public Library 1940-1945).

The farmers ultimately lost the land surrounding the base, and construction of a base for bomber training commenced in 1942. The base was built with the capacity for three hundred fifty officers and 3,000 trainees. The number of buildings on the base totaled around two hundred, and included an officer's club, two churches, barracks, officer's quarters, administrative buildings, a theater, a hospital, Women's Army Corp (WAC) buildings and quarters, and mess halls. The runways were extended 2,000 feet making them around 8,000 feet long. Railroad lines were also laid from Sergeant Bluff to the air base to bring in building materials during the construction of the base. The base served as a training center for B-17 bombers known as the "Flying Fortress." Most of these men were sent to Europe and the Mediterranean after their training. Following Germany's surrender in 1945, the base transitioned to a B-29 training as the war with Japan continued. Around 4,000 troops were trained at the base during World War II, and an all African American Squadron who were acknowledged to be the "pride of the airbase" and "the most efficient and best trained group at the Sioux City army air base." The base was also the site of the Air Force's first African American WAC unit (Sioux City Public Library 1940-1945; Sioux City Public Library 1946-1949; Sioux City Public Library 1950-1954; Jeff Straka 2000). ¹

As America joined the war efforts in the European theater in the 1940s, Sioux City became the site of an Army air base (Giddings 2017; Sioux City Public Museum 2024). The Sioux City Army Air Base was built in 1942 as a training location for bomber crews to prepare for overseas combat. The Iowa History Journal reported that the Chief of the US Army Air Corp, General Hap Arnold established four principles for the selection of new training sites following direction from then President Franklin D. Roosevelt to "beef up" America's defense organization. The established principles included the "conservation of funds, materials and national effort; efficiency of operation; maximum use of available facilities; and elimination of non-essentials," which determined the eligibility of four cities in the Midwest. Sioux City was seen to have "similar terrain to central Europe" and became a tactical airfield specializing in advance-training. "The Sioux City base was the last stop for the men before fully engaging in the war. Most of the crews were sent to either the 8th Air Force for the European Theatre of Operations or the 15th Air Force, which was part of the Mediterranean Theatre" (Huisman 2022).

In 1999, a site inventory conducted by Bear Creek Archaeology recommended the remaining chapel for inclusion on the NRHP. The chapel is one of the last standing structures at the airport that reflects the World War II period of the airbase. The chapel is situated to the northwest of the intersection of Discovery and Aviation Blvd. Plans to move the chapel were made in 1999, 2016, and 2019, but the chapel still remains at its original location. The 1999 inventory states that the chapel was designed to serve both Catholics and Jews, but a newspaper article from 1944 says that the Jewish soldiers attended services in the other chapel that was built at the airbase (Jeff Straka 2000; Sioux City Journal 8/2/2016; Iowa Public Radio News 9/17/19; Sioux City Public Library 1940-1945).

In December 1945, the airbase was shut down. Within six months, a new use was found for some of the airbase buildings. As soldiers came back from the war, the base was used as a separation center, and around 10,000 soldiers went through the base as they returned to civilian life. Additionally, as veterans returned, there was insufficient housing for them in Sioux City.

¹ One notable figure from this period of the airbase's past was African American Women's Army Corp was 1st Lieutenant Elizabeth C. Hampton, commander of the WAC's at the Sioux City Airbase. Hampton arrived at the Sioux City Airbase on April 1, 1944, with the other WAC's. She received her officer training in Des Moines. Prior to serving in the WAC, Hampton received an A.B. in sociology from the University of California, then received a B.A. in education from Chapman University and took graduate classes in psychiatric case work at University of Southern California. She worked as a public welfare worker for Los Angeles County until she joined the WAC. In the first assignment with the WAC, she was a recruitment officer in New York City. She joined the company, which was stationed at Sioux City in 1943 and they began serving in Walla Walla, Washington, then Wendover Field, Utah, and finally Sioux City. The Sioux City Journal described Hampton as being "extremely proud of her company and greatly interested in the welfare and advancement of the individual girls" (Sioux City Journal 4/23/1944:19; Sioux City Journal 4/2/1944:1; Sioux City Journal 8/27/1944:16). Under her command, the WAC at the Sioux City Airbase did clerical work, acted as photographers, medical and dental technicians, rigged parachutes, operated radios, did machine work, managed the post office, and filled numerous other roles. In August of 1944, Hampton was promoted to the rank of Captain (Sioux City Journal 4/23/1944:19; Sioux City Journal 8/27/1944:16). Among the 4,000 total troops who trained here, beyond those in WAC, was actor Jimmy Stewart.

Consequently, some of the barracks were modified to function as apartments for the soldiers and their families. In 1947, there were 25 apartment buildings housing around 200 people. Students with families from Morningside College also lived in some of the apartments at the airbase, and in 1951, sixty-four of the 200 apartments that were then at the base were owned by the college. As veterans returned, Iowa Colleges saw increased enrollment. For Western Union College in LeMar, half of the new enrollment was returning veterans. Barracks buildings were moved from the Sioux City Airbase to LeMar to be used as science laboratories, a study laboratory, and a lecture hall. Buena Vista College at Storm Lake, Iowa State College at Ames, Grinnell College at Grinnell, and Waldorf College at Forest City all received buildings from the airbase. Several buildings were also torn down at this time, including the officers' barracks, the jail, the officers club, the barracks for the African American soldiers, the Protestant chapel, the hospital, and a recreation hall (Sioux City Public Library 1940-1945; Sioux City Public Library 1946-1949; Sioux City Journal, 12/2/1951:24; Sioux City Public Library 1950-1954; Sioux City Journal 10/12/1947:10). After the war, the Sioux Gateway Airport (SUX) was designated to serve as a military airbase for the Iowa Air National Guard with few commuter flights from various airlines up through 2021.

Little was known about the base during the war, as many of the functions and locations of resources were purposefully kept secret. After the war, however, photographers were allowed to document the operation and maps were produced for the many hundreds of buildings that had been constructed (See Figure 9). Many of the buildings were barracks and related to the daily life, feeding, quartering, training, and health of troops. Other buildings were specifically air related, including hangars, maintenance shed, fuel stations, and many others. There were up to two chapels, a hospital, and other buildings designed for the well-being of the troops. Other buildings documented were less clear in terms of function or purpose. For instance, there were domed towers that were known celestial towers where pilots could train on the use of navigational sextants using maps on the floor and nighttime skies projected onto their domed ceilings (De Groot 2024).

Korean War and the Cold War Context. Two months after people began taking up residence in the refurbished barracks, the decision was made to use the airbase as an Air Force reserve training base, and the Air Force operated the base as such until 1949. In February 1947, the Air National Guard also began using the airbase for training. At this point, Sioux City was also operating the airport as a municipal airport again. On October 11, 1947, Sioux City purchased eight-hundred acres containing one hundred thirty buildings from the government, with a clause stating that the government could reclaim the airbase if necessary. Sioux City also recovered all land that had been leased by the city to the government at the airbase (Sioux City Public Library 1940-1945; Sioux City Public Library 1946-1949; Sioux City Public Library 1950-1954).

During the time when Sioux City operated the airport post-WWII, the airport thrived, and the city constructed a $470,000 new control tower, administration, and terminal building. This building was 85 feet tall with six stories. The bottom level housed a lobby, office, a coffee shop, and dining room. The city began using the building in 1953 after some discussion with the Air Force. In 1951, the Air Force began operating as a base for a fighter interceptor group, and by 1952 the interceptor group occupied the base. While plans for a thirty-five-million-dollar expansion of the airbase fell through, other significant changes were made to the airbase and surrounding area during this period (Sioux City Public Library 1950's; Sioux City Public Library 1950-1954).

In 1953, 210 acres were purchased for building ammunition "igloos" on the southwest side of the air base. Plans were made for the construction of three "igloos," and at least two of these three structures are still standing (Sioux City Public Library 1950-1954). One appears to be in ruins a bit farther to the north of the others.

Another substantial construction project at this time was construction of housing for the Air Force personnel and their families. In 1952, the Department of Defense made a request to Congress for money to build Air Force housing at the Sioux City Airbase. This request was made due to a housing shortage in Sioux City caused by the men returning from war. Families who had been living in the barracks, which were converted into apartments were forced out by 1,250 incoming Air Force fighter interceptor airmen, and those in the incoming fighter group with families looking for housing. Similar problems were cropping up across the country, which led to the Capehart Title 8 housing act. The housing projects at the Sioux City Airbase began with fifty-five housing units built on the airbase by 1957 designed by Amos B. Emery and Associates of Des Moines. Of these units, nineteen duplexes are still standing to the North of Aviation Blvd., and two duplexes and four single unit officer's quarters are standing south of Ogden Ave. A number of the other units were demolished in the early 2000s to allow for road construction on Aviation Blvd. because they were not deemed historically significant at that time. There was a waiting list to get into these first fifty-five units. One of the commanders at the base Col. Malcolm A. Moore asserted that the housing improved morale, camaraderie among the members of the Air Force at the base, and "the F-86 Saberjet pilots will 'be only minutes away' from their planes" in emergency situations (Sioux City Public Library 1950-1954; Sioux City Public Library 1955-1959; Leah D. Rogers and Jan Olive 2017).

Another 235 units were built a mile and a half east of the airbase on eighty acres of land. The estimated cost for the project was five or six million dollars. Emery was hired to design those units as well, and the main contractor was J.W. Bateson Construction Company from Dallas, Texas. Construction began in 1957, and military families began moving into the houses in 1959. By 1961, the site received an award for being the second-best Air Force housing in the United States, and the best in the central portion of the country. Over one hundred of these structures remain standing but are outside the APE and buffer area. It is unclear whether the 235 units refers to structures or housing units within the duplexes, but current aerial photos of the neighborhood look largely unchanged when compared with a 1960s photo, making it likely that "units" refers to the housing units within the duplexes. In this case the majority if not all the buildings are still standing (Sioux City Public Library 1955-1959; Sioux City Public Library 1960-1962; Iowa Geographic Map Server 2024).

Finally, a third significant construction project that occurred at the airbase in the 1950s and 60s was S.A.G.E or semi-automatic ground environment. This air defense project was a "warning system" that identified flights and air threats through various types of radar and the use of a "high-speed digital computer." Additionally, the system could:

Put a pilot interceptor on an enemy bomber and when the interceptor plane is equipped with an auto-pilot, the system can actually fly the plane to the target electronically and semiautomatically (Sioux City Public Library 1955-1959).

The system could monitor 440,000 square miles. In 1958, the site for this defense system was chosen, located between the air national guard hangar and the road to the airport administration building. The exact site is now between South Bridge Drive, Discovery Blvd., and the buildings occupied by the national guard. Construction began that same year and the main contractor was Peter Kiewit and Sons Co. Omaha, NE. By 1961, SAGE was fully operational. However, in 1968, the use of SAGE in Sioux City was discontinued due to new weapons being designed. Fractional Orbital Bombardment Systems had been designed, and SAGE's systems would not be able to detect missiles that were fired from a system in orbit. The building was to be transferred to the National Guard when it closed, although Sioux City also wanted the building. Through the 1970s and 1980s, the SAGE building was considered for use as a meat processing plant, a prison, a turkey de-boning firm, and a flight service center. The building is still standing and is now owned by Sioux-Preme Packing Company (Sioux City Public Library 1955-1959; Sioux City Public Library 1960-1962; Sioux City Public Library 1968-69; Sioux City Public Library 1970-Current; Sioux City Public Library 1980-1985; Woodbury County Assessor's Office 2024; Sioux City Journal 11/28/2014).

In 1959, rumors began to circulate that the airbase would close again. Although this rumor did not come to fruition at that time, a year later all the fighter jets were moved from the Sioux City air base. In 1968, with the closing of SAGE and military cutbacks, the base was shut down. Families of the 30th Air Defense Command had to vacate the Capehart housing by October 31st that year and discussions began concerning the possibility of Sioux City purchasing the houses. Plans were then made for the base to go to the 185th Tactical Division of the Iowa National Guard. Newspapers reported concern over the financial impact the closing of the base would have on the community, as well as the effect it would have on families who had members who were currently deployed. The 185th were supposed to take over the base but were activated and sent to Vietnam. In the meantime, the 124th Fighter Squadron from Des Moines occupied the base on a temporary basis while their base's runways were repaired. The base was also kept open for the family members of those serving in active duty. The base officially closed on June 30, 1969 (Sioux City Public Library 1955-1959; Sioux City Public Library 1960-62; Sioux City Public Library 1968-69).

Municipal Airport During the Korean and Cold Wars. While the airbase operated, the municipal airport remained open. This dual operation occasionally led to conflicts between the city and the airbase operation, and other times led to mutual improvements of the site. The first conflict occurred in 1953 when the new airport tower was completed, and the Air Force announced their intention of using it as part of a base expansion. In 1959, the city had to receive permission from the Air Force to open up a new road, which they had constructed from Interstate 29 to the terminal, reducing confusion for airport visitors. However, the two worked through the issue with the Air Force ultimately taking charge of the road construction that needed to be completed on 7th Street, while the city saw to it that the 7th Street main gate of the airbase was moved to 6th Street along with the security fence. In 1962, the main runway was extended, an undertaking mostly funded by the National Guard, but conducted under the supervision of the Sioux City Engineering Department. Part of the same project included in-runway lighting, an improvement that only one other airport in the country, LaGuardia International, had undertaken at this time (Sioux City Public Library 1950-1954; Sioux City Public Library 1950's; Sioux City Public Library 1960s).

Municipal Airport Construction and Demolition in the Cold War Era and Beyond. In 1985, updates to the terminal and other aspects of the airport were completed. The building got new heating, plumbing, and electric, the baggage claim and car rental areas were moved, another entrance was added, the size of the dining area and lounge was increased, and additional space was added for air carriers. At this time, the runway was resurfaced, the runway lights were replaced, and the taxiway was extended. Within a year, new construction was being considered because an increase in business at the airport was leading to a crowded terminal. That year, more parking was added to the north of the terminal, and plans were made to demolish a WWII hangar to further increase parking spaces. More renovations to the terminal were done between 1987-1988, although the exact nature of the changes is unclear. In 1988, plans for a four-million-dollar airport tower were announced. The tower would no longer be situated on the top of the terminal where it resided at that time. A hanger and another smaller building were demolished to make way for the new tower. The new tower was completed in 1992, and that same year, the control tower on top of the terminal was demolished. The new tower stood at 106 feet tall, 20 feet taller than the old tower. A new taxiway was also constructed around this time because the old taxiway included areas that were not visible from the new tower (Sioux City Library 1980-1985; Sioux City Library 1986-87; Sioux City Public Library 1970-Current).

In addition to the changes to the terminal, runways, and control tower, during the years following the closure of the airbase, the airport and surrounding areas saw changes due to demolition projects on several former airbase buildings. In 1968 or 1969, an Officers Annex Building burned. In 1983, the six remaining barracks were torn down because they were no longer used. In 1989, one of the base's oldest buildings was torn down. It was used during WWII to store Norden bombsights, which increased the accuracy of the B-17 bombers. When the building was used when the base reopened in the 1950's, it was operated as an administrative building. Later, the national guard used the building for communication purposes and also for a photo studio and their chemical warfare unit (Sioux City Public Library 1968-69; Sioux City Public Library 1980-1985; Sioux City Public Library 1970-Current).²

Continued Changes in the late-20th Century and Beyond. Around 2005 and 2006, aerial maps show the runways changing still further (See Figures 7 and 8). A section of pavement attached to the north end of the north-south runway fades significantly during these years, and it appears likely that a portion of these were also fully removed at this time (Iowa Geographic Map Server 2024).

In addition to the development of commercial and private air infrastructure in this part of the city, one major development for the Air National Guard base here ensured many more developments for that side of the operation. In 2003, the unit was converted into an Air Refueling Wing, which meant a change in equipment, operations, infrastructure, and operations. The base had been set up to handle aircraft such as A-7s and F-16s, which by then had become older, perhaps outdated, models. Available air refueling equipment and technology are continually changing, and so with it does the base. The needs of its operation have been dependent on the adaptation of the base (De Groot 2023).

² Late in this period, the Sioux City Airport also witnessed a tragedy. In 1989, United Airlines Flight 232 from Denver to Chicago lost a tail engine and the debris cut their hydraulics lines while flying over Iowa. The crew made the decision to emergency land at the Sioux City Airport and tried to steady the plane for landing using the throttles. They were unable to slow the plane to less than 250 miles per hour, around double the speed they would normally land that type of plane at. When the plane was touching down, it dipped to the right, the wing hitting the runway. The plane began rotating and broke into four pieces amid explosions. Emergency response teams were on the site and were able to help the injured. 184 of the 296 people aboard the plane survived. Everyone in the cockpit and seven out of eight flight attendants survived (Des Moines Register 7/15/2019; Popular Mechanics 7/18/2017).

Associated Property Types. The aviation history of the area spans a century, and is understood best in several periods as discussed in this study. There are very few resources left from the early history of air travel in this area. The original terminal and other resources from the municipal airport are now gone. The earliest generation of airbase resources are also mostly gone with at least one key exception, the first Rifle and Pistol Club Office (Project Inventory Number 033), which was part of the early airbase and visible in historic photographs taken at the end of World War II.

A list of Korean War and early Cold War resources extant in the area would be slightly more substantial. Examples include some general aviation resources such as hangars or sheds and some air-base operation resources. Some of them retain good integrity but are not likely to be found eligible on their own, and it is unlikely that a potential district of any kind would be possible. Examples of resources from the Korean War and early Cold War eras include the 1950s munition bunkers (Project Inventory Numbers 074 through 076) and other warehouse-type buildings (Project Inventory Number 077, for example).

Modern resources (fifty-years-old and older) are especially abundant in this context. The airport and airbase have undertaken considerable building and expansion projects in that time. Private airrelated resources, such as private hangars and aeronautic contractor offices, are also prevalent.

Overview of Transportation Routes in the Buffer Area

The new airport was situated close to the Chicago North Western Railway line, which was built from Missouri Valley, Iowa to Sergeant Bluff and Sioux City, Iowa in 1886. This line was operated by the same company until 1995, when the Union Pacific Railroad acquired the Chicago North Western. The Union Pacific still operates the lines to this day. In the days when the first discussions of an airport were occurring, the highway that ran closest to the present airport site was Highway 12. Highway 12 was designated on July 1, 1920, and in 1921, the part of the highway from Sioux City to Sergeant Bluff was paved. At this time, the portion of the highway through Sioux City and Sergeant Bluffs was part of several historic highways. Through Sioux City, Highway 12 was part of the Custer Battlefield Highway. This highway was established on December 23, 1919. The route ran from Omaha, Nebraska to Glacier National Park, Montana, although a 1925 map shows the route starting in Des Moines, Iowa. In 1917, the King of Trails Association was organized. This route ran from Winnipeg, Canada to Matamoros, Mexico. Between Council Bluffs to Sioux City, Highway 12 followed this route. On October 16, 1926, the section of Highway 12 that ran between Sioux City and Missouri Valley became Highway 75. In 1934, US 75 was rerouted, and the new route came even closer to the current airport site. US 75 closely followed the route of the Chicago North Western Railway line between Mandomin and Merrill, Iowa. US75 followed a similar although not exact route as the King of Trails, ending in Winnipeg, Canada in the North and Galveston, Texas in the South. A 1959 Iowa Transportation Map shows a potential route running alongside US75. In 1960, this route is labeled Interstate 29 and runs even closer to the airport to the west of US 75. US 75 now runs along the Nebraska side of the river and the portion of US 75 on the Iowa side is referred to as Old US 75.

The route for I-29 follows an old buffalo route approximately. The Iowa Department of Transportation state that this route was also known as "Military Road" in the mid-1800s. Historically, there were two military roads that led from Sioux City to Fort Randall, South Dakota and Fort Dakota, South Dakota. The military road referred to is more likely the one that ran to Fort Dakota, which was in present day Sioux Falls, because Interstate 29 runs north to Sioux Falls, not west toward the location of Fort Randall (A. Warner and Company 1890; Department of Transportation. Interactive Map of Current and Abandoned Lines 2024; Union Pacific 2024; Iowa Department of Transportation, Iowa Registered Highway Routes 1914-1925 2024; John C. Mulford and C.C. Faunce 1925; Brian McMillin 2023; The Parson's Daily Sun 2/18/1922:4; Johne Hancock, Iowa 12 2023; John Hancock, Iowa 75 2023; John Hancock, Sioux City Highway Chronology 2023; Iowa Department of Transportation 1927; Sioux City Journal 6/16/1928:18; Iowa Department of Transportation 1959; Iowa Department of Transportation 1960; Minnehaha County Historical Society 2004; Maxine Schurmanns Kinsley 2010).

Dwight D. Eisenhower signed the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1956, which is what created the dedicated funding for this interstate system ensuring that each state received proportionate funding, regularly being evaluated and updated by the Federal Highway Administration and submitted to Congress. In 1992, the Interstate system was declared officially complete, with a final length of 48,756 miles and final cost of nearly $128 billion with the federal government owning nearly 90% of the cost at $114.3 billion (DOT:FWHA) and as of 2020, about one-quarter of all vehicle miles driven in the country used the Interstate Highway System to travel. North of US 30, I-29 generally was constructed parallel to the old US 75. South of Council Bluffs, I-29 was built on an entirely new right-of-way that is much closer to the Missouri River than was US 275" (Interstate-29-Iowa 2008: 2-3). Interstate 29 passes through four states and several major metropolitan areas including Kansas City Council Bluffs, Sioux City, Sioux Falls, Fargo, Grand Forks and Winnipeg and carries with it a very rich history earning it the name the Transamerica Highway or "America's Expressway" because of the roads connection to many iconic old highways and trails of the United States (American Roads; Sioux City Public Museum 2024).

Development in the Area of Sioux Gateway Airport in the Modern Era

Aerial maps of the landscape around the airport show changes over various periods of time. A new subdivision was added to the east of the Capehart neighborhood, which appears on the 1980s map, but not the 1970s map. There is also a neighborhood that begins to appear to the east of Highway 29 between Ogden Ave. and 8th Street on the 1980's map. On the 1990s map, a neighborhood is growing across the highway from the other one to the west. This neighborhood expanded by the time the 2002 map was photographed. Additionally, on the 1990s map, a subdivision emerges to the south of Warrior Rd. between Port Neal Road and the Railroad. Also, between the 1990 and 2002 maps, more businesses begin to appear directly to the north of the airport on what was previously farmland, as well as along the west side of the railroad to the southeast of the airport. While the area closest to the airport does not show signs of significant development until 2002, between the 1970 map and the 2002 map, there is steady industrial growth in the overall region north of the airport south of Highway 75. This growth appears to level out around 2002, with few changes between the 2002 and 2004 maps. Between the 2002 and 2004 maps, another subdivision appears to the south of the Capehart homes and there are the beginnings of another subdivision to its east. This subdivision has grown by the 2005 map and has expanded even further on the 2006 map (Iowa Geographic Map Server 2024).

In 1992, the Sioux City Journal mentions the school district as a main reason that people moved to Sergeant Bluff, the area of Sioux City where the airport is positioned. Businesses such as Sioux City Brick and Tile, Longlines Ltd., Triland Foods, Roadway Package Systems, and MCI Services Marketing Inc. all provided employment opportunities. The article claims that Sergeant Bluff was foremost in the state for growth as a city with a 139 percent population increase since 1970. In 1999, an article reported that housing development in Sergeant Bluff followed a steady growth trajectory from the 1960s through the 1990s. The article suggests that the main reasons that people moved to that area were primarily excellent schools, but the closeness to shopping, the airport, the highway, and lower tax rates were also benefits. By 2005, the school system was still listed as the main reason that the community size continued to increase in Sergeant Bluff (Sioux City Journal 11/9/1992; Sioux City Journal 3/28/1999; Sioux City Journal 3/13/2005).

Associated Property Types: The component regions within the APE and buffer area, including the cities of Sergeant Bluff, Iowa and Dakota City, Nebraska, have taken on somewhat of a suburban nature in the modern era, a result of being satellites to the large urban core of Sioux City. Interstates and other highways have made it especially easy for the daily transportation of people to and from these suburban type neighborhoods that have developed within them. Less dense industrial zones have also been incorporated buffer area's component parts. With larger operations, such as Seaboard Triumph Foods, with more space and separation from other resources or neighborhoods. Today, the suburban residential areas and these types of industrial developments dominate the APE and buffer area.

FINDINGS OF THE HISTORICAL-ARCHITECTURAL SURVEY

Resources Identified within Or Adjacent to the Area of Potential Effect (APE)

All resources within or touching the APE boundary (See Figure 3) are identified in this section. Resources that are 45-years-of-age or older and identified as potential property takes are also recorded on Iowa Site Inventory Forms (ISIFS). All photos in this section were taken by Tallgrass Archaeology LLC staff between March 24th and April 11th, 2024, unless otherwise noted.

Project Inventory No. 001 Name: North Drainage Ditch Resources: Circa-1965 Ditch, 2005/2006 Modifications Address/Location: Along northwest part of airfield running toward the Missouri River UTMs (Z15,NAD83): linear resource

Exterior Materials: Earth, Concrete, Metal

Concrete culvert and ditch near Seaboard Triumph Pkwy, looking east.

Description: This resource is a system of ditches that drain the airport and nearby properties, running through and along the northwest part of the APE. The ditch includes a series of several excavated ditches or channels that are fed by simple, standardized concrete and metal culverts and stormwater outlets. These sewers are simple in design and construction. The first apparent ditch in this area was constructed in the 1960s. The north and east parts of this ditch system were heavily modified and expanded in 2005/2006.

Perimeter fence crossing ditch near west end of airfield, looking northeast.

Multi-culvert and ditch west of Seaboard Triumph Pkwy, looking east.

Significance: This system of ditches, culverts, and stormwater outlets originated in the 1960s, though aerial photography shows how much of it was significantly modified in 2005/2006. The modifications included a realignment along the northeast section toward Seaboard Triumph Road and the nearby airport perimeter road. It also included the addition of a new northwesterly ditch toward the river. The oldest part of this ditch continues southwest then west toward the river. Because of these modifications, the ditch lacks much of its historic integrity. Furthermore, none of the culverts or outlets appear to be significant in design or construction. This resource appears to be wholly common architecturally with standardized materials and sizes. For these reasons, the subject ditch is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 002

Name: Communications Shed
Resources: Circa-1965 Building
Address/Location: Near north end of 13/31 runway

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 220179.48,4701180.92

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingles, Wood Fenestration, Concrete

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This small shed sits directly within the project APE. It is side-gabled and is covered with asphalt shingles. It has what appears to be modern, replacement siding that is wood or possibly Dryvit or some other type of material. The foundation appears to be concrete. The building has wood, eight-lite windows on its northwest side. A number of large antennae are affixed to the building, and others are positioned on the ground around it.

Preliminary Significance: This building is covered with replacement materials on its roof and exterior walls. It does retain historic fenestration, however. The building is not demonstrative of significant design or construction. It has a small, simple, side-gabled form. Though certainly important to the operation of the airport, its function is not significant enough to warrant consideration under Criterion A. For these reasons, the subject building is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Building 235

Resources: Circa-1973 Building,

Circa-2000 addition

Address/Location: Along northeast of airbase apron

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222314.39,4699222.22

Exterior Materials: Concrete, Brick or Brick Veneer, Asphalt

Roll

Looking east.

Preliminary Description: This building was built circa-1973 and contained a bi-level flat roof. The northeast addition is also flat-roofed. The roofs are covered with rolled asphalt. The central and southeast parts of the building are the oldest. They each contain brick or brick veneer walls with metal siding at their tops. The center portion is tallest and has a low-pitched, gabled form. The southwest part is a single story in height and runs the full breadth of the larger body. The northeast portion is a circa-2000 addition. This portion has much more fenestration. It is also a single story in height, covered with brick or brick veneer, and has metal siding on the upper portion of the wall, matching that of the older sections.

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Significance: This building was previously inventoried under ISIF number 97-04959 and was recommended not eligible. The current survey concurs with that finding. This building has been modified in the modern era with its substantial northeast expansion. It is not significant in design or construction, being simple and unelaborated. The building was historically used as an F-16 engine shop, through the 1990s and to the time of the conversion of the unit to a refueling wing. The building was remodeled and repurposed in the early 2000s, serving mostly as offices for people or groups who are temporarily displaced during construction or remodeling projects (De Groot 2024). The building was often slated for demolition, which has of course never come to fruition. The function of the building does not appear to be significant enough for individual eligibility and the surrounding buildings are generally of low historic integrity if not modern. For these reasons, the subject building is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: South Drainage Ditch

Resources: Circa-1975, Circa-

1990 Ditches

Address/Location: Along Harbor

Dr and Sully Rd.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): Linear

Resources

Exterior Materials: Earth, Metal,

Concrete, Gravel

Culvert and ditch, looking west-northwest parallel to Sully Road.

This resource is a system of ditches that drain the south parts of the airfield. The north-south ditch in the system runs along the west side of Harbor Drive. It appears to have once drained south into a natural stream bed or overflow. However, the circa-1990 ditch that extends from its south end to the west, to the Missouri River, now appears to carry the water. There are several road crossings over the ditch that include metal culverts. The system is fed by metal and concrete outlets and culverts.

Ditch parallel to Harbor Drive, looking south-southeast.

This system of ditches, culverts, and stormwater outlets originated in the 1970s, per historic aerial photographs. It appears to have drained south into a nearby natural waterway, stream, or overflow. However, in about 1990, a large ditch system was added from its south end that carries the water west to the Missouri River. None of the culverts or outlets appear to be significant in design or construction. This resource appears to be wholly common architecturally with standardized materials and sizes. For these reasons, the subject ditch is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Building 241 (A)

Resources: Circa-1960 Building

Address/Location: North of Andrew Ave and Sully Ave

intersection

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222157.08,4698485.33

Exterior Materials: Steel

Looking west.

Preliminary Description: This structure is a large, multi-bay, hangar-style building with the function of painting and repairing aircraft. The building has two large sections with a smaller center section that acts as a hyphen between them. The center section has a second-story overhang with windows for site observation. The large sections each contain two very large overhead doors. The rooflines of the building are shed style. The roof and walls are all covered with steel.

Preliminary Significance: In concurrence with previous inventories, this resource is not likely to be found eligible for the NRHP. It is simple in design and construction, and therefore not likely to be eligible under Criterion C. Its setting is greatly modified, and it is suspected that its exterior materials are also changed. Because of changes to the subject building and to those around it, the building on is not likely to properly demonstrate any significance under Criterion A or Criterion B in any meaningful way. This resource was inventoried as one part of building number 241 and was recommended not eligible (97-04961). This finding is in concurrence with the present survey.

Project Inventory No. 006

Name: Airfield Site

Resources: Site

Address/Location: Sioux Gateway

Airport

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): n/a

Exterior Materials: Concrete,

Metal

Preliminary Description: The airfield landscape (site) is comprised of the built resources that are spread across the operating airfield at Sioux Gateway Airport. This includes modern and historic pavements (aprons/ramps, taxiways, runways; See Figure 7), utility and communication boxes, structures, objects, and perimeter fencing. There are enumerable resources that are built across the open expanse of the airfield, ranging from small boxes sitting on small concrete pads up to larger building-like utility and communication structures. This resource also includes objects such as signs, fences, barricades, bollards, and others. Most of these objects are modern in age.

Significance: Functionally, these resources are imperative to the operation of the airport and airbase, but individually, they lack the ability to demonstrate significant architecture or historical associations. This is in large part because many are modern in age. Others have been modified or moved. The runways themselves are large in size and significant in their importance to the past and present function of the airport/airbase, but they too have undergone routine maintenance, replacement, modification, removal, and deconstruction. Most of the materials are modern in age. The runways and their associated taxiways and aprons are not likely eligible for the NRHP.

For these reasons, all component parts of this landscape are recommended not eligible for the NRHP, preliminarily. Likewise, there is no potential historic district here that they could be contributing to.

Expected work includes the removal and modification of some of these resources and the rearrangement of some others. The bulk of the work is to be done in the form of removal of concrete and the paving of different runway areas. Some of the concrete to be removed is historic in age, but this designation is limited to only small portions of what would have constituted full runways, and those sections remaining are generally unused today. Much of the runway areas have been repaved over the years. Modifications to these resources are routine.

Further documentation and discussion can be found on the Iowa Site Inventory Form for this resource.

012	Building 244 (Building)	Ca. 2005	North of Andrew Ave and Sully Ave intersection	Modern; Not Eligible

Discussion: Twelve buildings and sites were evaluated for potential NRHP eligibility within or immediately adjacent to the project APE. Some were evaluated at the intensive level using Iowa Site Inventory Forms (see appendices). Of the twelve resources, none are recommended eligible for the NRHP. First, many of them are modern in age and generally ineligible for that reason. Others are of poor historic integrity and were found to be ineligible for that reason. Others were found to be too simple or standardized in design to represent significant architecture under Criterion C and/or too insignificant functionally to represent any important context individually. All of these conditions are to be expected in this area, as an active airport/airbase requires many forms of routine maintenance and buildup to safely function.

In consideration of these resources in conjunction with related, nearby resources of the buffer area, no potential historic district was identified to which the resources evaluated above would contribute. This finding is in concurrence with previous evaluations of the area.

Buffer Area Resources: Other Air and Military-Related Resources

Because of their close functional and thematic ties to the resources within the direct APE, all airrelated resources (See Figure 4), regardless of age, were reviewed during the windshield survey of the buffer area. It also included other Army National Guard resources in close proximity. All photos in this section were taken by Tallgrass Archaeology LLC staff between March 24th and April 11th, 2024, unless otherwise noted.

Project Inventory No. 016

Name: Hangar

Resources: Circa-1960 Building

Address/Location: W of Mitchell Avenue/Al

Haynes Drive

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222058.38,4700462.87

Exterior Materials: Concrete, Rubber Membrane,

Metal

Looking west-southwest.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a rectangular building with a flat roof of two levels. The walls appear to be of concrete and its roof of rubber membrane. The building is simple in design and form.

Preliminary Significance: This building was built circa-1960. Its simple design, matched with its common function, leaves it with little to no significance under the NRHP criteria. It is also somewhat removed from other historic or potentially significant resources. Its setting is greatly weakened by the removal of other historic resources (including what may have been a twin of the same design to the north) and the construction of new ones around it. For these reasons, it is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 018

Name: Hangar

Resources: Circa-1950 Building
Address/Location: Keokuk Avenue

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222058.28,4700329.09

Exterior Materials: Concrete, Metal, Wood

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Description: This hangar has a stepped façade on its south end with a variety of exterior materials. It has a receding pattern along this wall that is adorned with a long row of metal, multi-lite windows below a pent roof. The monitor roof does not appear to have windows on at least its east side, but there are windows along the lower walls. The building is covered with a variety of siding and roofing materials, including metal, wood, and concrete.

Preliminary Significance: This building is one of the older buildings associated with the air operations here. Its design and material integrities are good, with its stepped and receding forms giving it a streamline or aerofoiled inspiration appropriate for such a function. The building retains good overall integrity, though the setting has been weakened by ongoing demolition and construction in the area. The building is therefore recommended preliminarily eligible for the NRHP under Criteria A and/or C, given further survey work.

Project Inventory No. 022

Name: Hangar

Resources: Circa-1970 Building

Address/Location: 5921 Pershing St

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222038.72,4700072.33

Exterior Materials: Metal/Steel

Looking west.

Preliminary Description: This building has a barrel vaulted roofline. The roof is covered with metal, though some parts may have rubber membrane coverings. There is a single-story wing on its south side. Many of these materials appear to be modern replacements.

Preliminary Significance: The building is approximately fifty years of age. Though it is historic in age it appears to be covered with modern materials. It is also not of significant design or construction. For these reasons it does not appear likely to be found eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 024

Name: Sioux City Municipal Airport Terminal

Resources: 1953 Building; 1985, 1987, 2009-10

Modifications

Address/Location: 2403 Aviation Blvd

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 221919.90,4699821.76

Exterior Materials: Brick Veneer; Dryvit; Concrete;

Steel

Looking west-northwest.

Preliminary Description: This building serves as the primary commercial flight terminal for the Sioux City Municipal Airport. It is covered with brick veneer, though other materials include steel, concrete, and Dryvit. The building has a central tower of three stories, with single story portions around it that are a combination of original building and various alter additions. The Interior has been especially heavily modified. The notable characteristics of the original building include some of the decorative, Decoinspired windows. The front canopy contains four tall, capped piers with a Deco or Moderne-inspired feeling, though these (and the canopy as a whole) do not appear until the 2016-18 aerials.

Vertical window looking west. Main terminal façade looking northwest. South addition, looking southwest.

Interior of terminal looking east-northeast. Apron side of terminal and south addition looking northeast.

Preliminary Significance: The original part of this building was built in 1953 as the replacement for a 1940 terminal building elsewhere on the property. The architect of the 1953 William Neilson and the Engineer was Paul V. Roberts. The general contractor was the W.A. Klinger Company. In 1985, the building underwent an extensive addition and remodeling project. At that time Duffy-Beuttler-Olson-Brygger was the architect and engineering firm, G.L. Larson Co. was the general contractor, G.L. Suter & Son was the mechanical contractor, and Thompson Electric was the electrical contractor. Additional work was done in 1987, when Duffy-Ruble-Mamura-Brygger did the architectural and engineering work, G.L. Larson was the general contractor again, Energy Wise and Foulk Bros. did the mechanical contracting, and Thompson Electric again did the electrical work. In the years of 2009 and 2010, further terminal reconstruction was conducted. The architect and engineers were Cannon, Moss, Brygger & Associates and Reynolds Smith & Hills, while W.A. Klinger was the general contractor. Little remains of the original 1950s, especially on the interior, which has been heavily modified. However, some of its character defining features include some of its Deco-inspired main tower. Its footprint today is more than double that of the original part. In addition to the single-story additions on all sides of the building, the Moderne-inspired canopy over the front entrance is part of the 21st-centiry addition and reconstruction project. The building is so heavily modified that it is not likely to be found eligible under Criterion C. It is, however, significant to the history of transportation and commerce locally. Further research may find that it, or at least its historic body, is significant under Criterion A locally.

(97-04274)

Name: Green Commercial Building

Resources: Circa-1970 Building

Address/Location: SE corner of Pershing St and

Ogden Ave

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222062.51,4699714.91

Exterior Materials: Metal, Wood

Looking southeast.

Preliminary Description: This mid-century modern building has a feeling that fits the aviation sector. The building has a low-pitched gabled roof with a broad eaves overhanging its front gable. The building is covered with a steel roof, and its walls are covered with metal and wood. The building has large storefront windows.

Preliminary Significance: This building was previously recommended not eligible (97-04274). The building is relatively simple in design and construction. Though it has good material integrity, its feeling and setting are weakened by the many changes around it. The building does not appear to have significant associations to the airport operation or strong ties to people/events of the past that are significant under any NRHP Criteria. For these reasons, the current recommendation is concurrence with the previous finding of not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 029

Name: Hangar

Resources: Circa-1960 Hangar

Address/Location: 6101 Pershing St

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222012.94,4699704.84

Exterior Materials: Metal

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a simple gabled shed or hangar. It has a metal-covered roof and metal-covered exterior walls. The east wall has a single-story, shed-style addition or wing. The ghost markings of a former vestibule or awning surround an entry door on the south wall.

Preliminary Significance: This circa-1960 hangar appears to have good integrity. It is, however, simple in design and construction, leaving it unlikely to qualify individually for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 030

Name: Hangar

Resources: Circa-1970 Building with circa-1990

addition

Address/Location: 6121 Pershing St

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 221996.36,4699634.87

Exterior Materials: Metal; Synthetics/Vinyl

Looking west.

Preliminary Description: The north part of this building dates to circa 1970. This part of the building has a low-pitched, front-gabled roof. It is clad with metal walls and roofing, though part of the gable may be covered in what appears to possibly be a corrugated vinyl or synthetic material if not metal. The larger, crica-1990 addition on the south part of the building has a higher, front-gabled roof. It is clad with metal walls and roofing. The building sits on concrete.

Preliminary Significance: Though this building is historic in part, the larger, dominant part of the building is modern. The building has good integrity in its older part, but it is simple in design and construction. It does not appear likely to qualify under Criterion C. The building replaced older military buildings on this site. It does not appear to have strong associations with any significant events or people of the past. For these reasons, the building appears unlikely to qualify individually for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 031

Name: Hangar

Resources: Circa-1970 Building

Address/Location: SW end of Pershing St UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 221980.07,4699561.49

Exterior Materials: Metal

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Description: This hangar first appears in the 1970s aerial photographs, though its single-story sides may be later additions. The building is covered in metal siding, though it appears that this may be a modern replacement. The roof is also metal.

Preliminary Significance: Although this building is historic in age, it appears to have some modifications. These modifications, in conjunction with its simple design and form may preclude it from NRHP eligibility. Its function and service also appear to be ordinary for such a simple hangar. For these reasons, the subject building is not likely to qualify for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 033

Name: Hawkeye Rifle and Pistol Club

Resources: 1940s Building

Address/Location: 6217 Mitchell St

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222099.26,4699534.93

Exterior Materials: Metal

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a single-story, cross-gabled building. It has a metal-covered roof and metal-covered walls. It has a high, brick chimney. A modern wood ramp leads to its main entrance. It is not clear if its fenestration is historic or modern.

Looking south.

Preliminary Significance: This structure is one of the few buildings remaining from a WWII military installation on this site. The building has weak material integrity resulting from the application of some modern materials on its exterior, but further research may find that the historic material is intact behind them. The building retains its historic form and design. It has a historic chimney though it is not yet known if that is original or not. Because it is one of the few military buildings left from that period of history, further research may find that it is eligible under Criterion A of the NRHP, even with its decreased material integrity.

Project Inventory No. 037

Name: Shed

Resources: Circa-1972 Shed

Address/Location: 2600 D Parkman Ave

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222265.04,4699597.46

Exterior Materials: Metal, Concrete

Preliminary Description: This resource is a small, simple, side-gabled shed that dates to circa 1972. It is metal-covered on its walls and roof. It has sliding, side-by-side windows.

Preliminary Significance: Despite its historic age and good material integrity, this shed has no significant elements of design or construction. The setting is poor, which also impacts its feeling. The building has no known associations with significant events or people that warrant individual eligibility. It is recommended preliminarily not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 038

Name: Shed

Resources: Circa-1972 Shed

Address/Location: 2600 E Parkman Ave UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222221.32,4699540.02 Exterior Materials: Metal, Concrete, Wood

Looking west.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a small, simple, side-gabled shed that dates to circa 1972. It is metal-covered on its walls and roof. It has sliding, side-by-side windows.

Preliminary Significance: Despite its historic age and good material integrity, this shed has no significant elements of design or construction. The setting is poor, which also impacts its feeling. The building has no known associations with significant events or people that warrant individual eligibility. It is recommended not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 039

Name: Hangar

Resources: Circa-1960 Building

Address/Location: S of Mitchell St and Powell Ave

intersection

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222111.50,4699446.99

Exterior Materials: Metal

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a very long and narrow building, approximately 570 feet by 36 feet. The building is used primarily for storage. It has a metal roof and metal siding.

Preliminary Significance: This building is historic in age and unusual in its design, featuring long rows of numbered bays. Further research may find that it is eligible under Criterion A of the NRHP. It appears to have good overall integrity.

Project Inventory No. 040

Name: Hangar

Resources: Circa-1960 Building

Address/Location: In lawn between aprons of airport and airbase

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222016.88,4699428.84

Exterior Materials: Metal

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Description: This barrel-vaulted hangar/shed was built circa-1960, likely in the later part of the 1950s. It has been covered with modern metal materials, including on its roof and its exterior walls, though historic wood materials may be intact behind that.

Preliminary Significance: The building retains poor historic integrity of materials, though its designed roof and form are intact. The building is relatively small compared to resources with similar functions in the area, past or present. The building has a mixed setting. Its feeling is poor. The building's poor material integrity, poor setting, and low significance of design or function likely preclude it from representing any historic context. It is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 051

(97-04966)

Name: Sioux City Air Base Building 261

Resources: 1957 Building; Circa-1975, Circa-

Address/Location: NE corner airbase apron UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222391.59,4699181.44

Exterior Materials: Metal, Concrete; Brick Veneer

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This large building was built in 1957 and has a low-pitched gabled form. It appears to be covered with modern materials, including a metal roof and siding. The southwest and northeast ends of the building have been modified with substantial additions, including a high, gabled mass on its apron-facing side.

2004 photograph showing construction of the hangar's large, apron-facing side, looking north. Source: De Groot 2023.

Preliminary Significance: This building was previously inventoried with site inventory number 97-04966 and was recommended not eligible. The building appears to be modified heavily, with substantial additions on both ends and the application of modern materials. These modifications appear to preclude its ability to represent any significance under NRHP criteria. For these reasons, the building is recommended not eligible, in concurrence with its previous recommendation.

Project Inventory No. 057

Address/Location: Near SE end of Halsey Blvd

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222390.68,4699262.21

Exterior Materials: Metal, Brick or Brick Veneer

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This small building has a low-pitched, gabled roof. It is brick veneered with metal in the upper gable walls. The east-facing wall has three entry doors.

Preliminary Significance: This building was previously inventoried under ISIF number 97-04969 and was recommended not eligible. The current survey concurs with that finding. It is not significant in design, construction, or function. It does not appear likely to be of significance under any criterion of the NRHP and is therefore recommended not eligible.

Concrete

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This building is L-shaped in form. It is one story tall and has a flat roof. The building has modern fenestration and a modern addition. The building is covered with brick or brick veneer.

Preliminary Significance: This building was previously inventoried under ISIF number 97-04964 and recommended not eligible. The current survey concurs with that finding. This building appears to have poor historic integrity, which is the result of its modifications and circa-2000 addition. This lacking integrity likely precludes it from inclusion in the NRHP, and it is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Recent Remodel

Address/Location: E of McArthur St

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222489.29,4699076.76

Exterior Materials: Brick or Brick Veneer

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a two-story office building with modern fenestration with a circa-2000 addition and a substantial interior remodel that was conducted recently. The building has modern fenestration. A large, metal bat (the mascot of the local air national guard wing) has been constructed over each entrance. The building has a flat roof and is covered with brick or brick veneer.

Preliminary Significance: This building was previously inventoried under ISIF No. 97-04965 and recommended not eligible at that time. The current survey concurs with that finding, and the building has only been further modified since. This building appears to have poor historic integrity, which is the result of its modifications and circa-2000 addition. This lack of integrity likely precludes it from inclusion in the NRHP, and it is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Roll, Concrete, Metal

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This building has two main masses that are connected by a small, single-story center section. Each of the main masses has a flat roof. Rows of windows on the second story sit above large garage-style doors on the first story of its southwest facing façade. The building is covered with brick or brick veneer.

Preliminary Significance: The current building has been previously inventoried under ISIF No. 97-04963. It was recommended not eligible at that time, and the current survey concurs with that recommendation. This building is modern and is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 062

Name: Building 269

Resources: 1968 Building

Address/Location: Midpoint E side MacArthur St UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222523.14,4699230.81

Exterior Materials: Brick or Brick Veneer

Looking west.

Preliminary Description: This building is a single story in height and has a flat roof. It has a T-shaped form. It has brick or brick veneer walls.

Preliminary Significance: This building was previously recommended not eligible under ISIF No. 97-04970, and the present survey is in concurrence with that. This building appears to have overall good integrity. Its function appears to be offices. The building is simple and standard in design, leaving it with little possibility of representation of any significance under Criterion C. Despite its good material integrity, the building may not demonstrate significant associations under Criteria A or B either. Its simplicity and standardized nature are almost generic in feeling. The changing nature of the setting around it also leaves a negative impact. If in a potential district with a stronger setting and case for eligibility, it may have been considered as potentially contributing, but no such district appears to be present here. To that end, is preliminarily recommended not eligible.

Preliminary Description: This building is primarily an office space. Most of it is a single-story in height with a flat roof and brick or brick veneer exterior walls. A modern addition detracts much from the building. A taller part of the building appears to have primarily concrete construction.

Preliminary Significance: This building is not yet fifty-years-of-age and is also heavily modified. It is therefore preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 221124.86,4698795.57

Exterior Materials: Concrete, Earth

Looking east.

Preliminary Description: This resource is an earthen bunker with a concrete façade. Its façade has double doors, and three vents along its roof.

Preliminary Significance: The three bunkers on this site were discussed in a 1955 article about the planning for them. It appears likely that the bunker would be found eligible under Criterion C and A, as demonstration of Cold War activities at the air base here. The bunker retains elements of material, design, and craftsmanship. Its setting is weakened by lots of changes in the surrounding area, but the other two bunkers are nearby—the north one being in ruins. This resource is preliminarily recommended eligible for the NRHP, especially when considered in conjunction with the other two.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 221062.56,4699256.00

Exterior Materials: Concrete, Earth

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Description: This resource is the northmost of three extant bunkers. Their construction was discussed in a 1955 newspaper article mentioned above in this report. This bunker is much the same as the others, with a concrete wall, metal door, and earthen coverings. However, it has a second concrete wall that faces its entrance, creating a sort of alley in front of it.

Looking southeast.

Preliminary Significance: The three bunkers on this site were discussed in a 1955 article about the planning for them. This resource is preliminarily recommended eligible for the NRHP, especially when considered in conjunction with the other two.

Project Inventory No. 077

Name: Police Training Grounds: Brick Warehouse

Resources: Circa-1950 Building

Address/Location: N end Allison Ave

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 221067.88,4699017.99

Exterior Materials: Brick, Metal

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a gabled brick building with a tall brick or concrete chimney on its northeast corner. It has two overhead garage doors on its south wall that may be replacements, but most materials appear to be historic. It has four large roof vents along the ridge of its roof. The building first appears in the 1950s historic aerials.

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Significance: This building retains good overall historic integrity and appears to retain materials, design, and other aspects of its integrity. Its setting has changed. It is preliminarily recommended eligible for the NRHP under Criterion C for its architecture. It may also be found eligible for its demonstration of air-related histories under Criterion A and/or B.

Project Inventory No. 078

Name: Police Training Grounds: Steel Warehouse

Resources: Circa-1950 Building

Address/Location: N end Allison Ave

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 221024.84,4699029.43

Exterior Materials: uncertain

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This building first appears in the 1950s aerial photographs, but it appears to have more recent material applications. The building could not be fully viewed from the public rights-of-way.

Preliminary Significance: This historic-age building may have significant associations with the airbase operations here, but its apparent material changes may limit its ability to demonstrate historic architecture. The building is recommended for further research to better understand its potential historic associations with airbase operations.

Project Inventory No. 079

Name: Police Training Grounds

Training Field Sites (2)

Address/Location: Allison Ave

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 220946.7,4699024.7

Exterior Materials: Undetermined

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Description: There are several buildings in this area that date to about 1950 or 1960, they are not likely significant in design or architecture, but future research may find they hold significant associations to the air base or other historic functions in the area. They are surrounded by modern resources that may detract from the setting. The grounds and resources are today used for police training exercises. Most of the resources could not be viewed from public rights-of-way.

Looking southwest. Looking west.

Preliminary Significance: These resources do not appear to hold significant elements of design or architecture that would be of significance under Criterion C. Their size and functional likelihood of modifications or replacement material may limit their ability to qualify under any air base or other contexts. For that reason, these small buildings are preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Sioux City Air Base Airmen's Housing

Historic District

Resources: Duplexes (19)

Address/Location: Bounded by Discovery Blvd, MacArthur St, Niobrara Ave and Marquette Ave

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): n/a

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt, Brick Veneer,

Looking east along Marquette Ave.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a series of duplexes used for housing officers and their families. It consists of nineteen buildings. They appear to be fairly well intact from the time they were previously inventoried.

Preliminary Significance: This district was surveyed in 2019 and 2020 and recommended eligible at that time. The district still retains all nineteen contributing resources that were identified at that time. The setting within the district is fair, but the surrounding areas have changed somewhat. Overall, the preliminary recommendation for this district is that is remains eligible.

Project Inventory No. 085 (ISIF No. 97-04251)

Name: Sioux Air Base Potential Historic District

Resources: Duplexes (6), Chapel

Address/Location: Bounded by Niobrara Ave, Discovery Blvd/Southbridge Dr, and MacArthur

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt, Brick Veneer, Concrete

Looking southeast near Newell Street.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a district that contains a chapel and six duplexes that were used for housing officers and their families. It has undergone street re-alignments and a number of demolitions in recent years. The demolitions include some of the duplexes and a few other buildings.

Looking east from near Aviation Blvd.

Preliminary Significance: This district was surveyed in about 2000 and has seen a number of substantial changes since that time. The chapel remains but has been separated from the rest of the district by the construction of the 1st St/Aviation Blvd overpass and approaches. A number of other buildings have been removed, including a factory/exchange building and five duplexes. The duplexes were removed for the re-alignment of Discovery Blvd/Southbridge Dr, which curves through the buffer area. The setting is weakened and the areas surrounding the district are also changed. The district retains six extant duplexes and the chapel, it is therefore recommended for further study to determine any remaining eligibilities.

Discussion: In total, seventy-one individual resources were identified in this component of the project. They have the closest functional and thematic associations to the resources within the APE, which is related to the airport and airbase/National Guard operations here. The resources were first considered individually for potential eligibilities, and all were given preliminary findings. To summarize, nine of these seventy-one resources were recommended preliminarily eligible or recommended for future inquiry:

- Proj. Inv. No. 018
- Proj. Inv. No. 024
- Proj. Inv. No 033
- Proj. Inv. No 039
- Proj. Inv. No 074
- Proj. Inv. No 075
- Proj. Inv. No 076
- Proj. Inv. No 077
 - Proj. Inv. No 078

These resources were also considered in groups of various sizes for potentially eligible NRHP districts. They were examined in conjunction with the related resources explored above within the APE. The area does not appear to hold enough integrity for an overall airport and/or airbase district, which seems to be in concurrence with previous recommendations. The primary factors in this loss of integrity are the number of modifications that have been made to the resources themselves in some cases, including additions and modifications made to the operations buildings and the addition of many new buildings in the modern era, including some in very recent years. Changes have also been made to the setting of the airport and airbase, including the changing of roadways, landscapes, and the sale/lease of land to private groups or individuals.

There are however, two potential districts that have been previously identified in the buffer area, those related to the Cold War era officer's duplexes. These have been thoroughly studied and are recorded here under their umbrella site inventory numbers and current Project Inventory Numbers (084 and 085). The Sioux City Air Base Airmen's Housing Historic District (084) has seen very few changes in the modern era and is still recommended eligible. The Sioux Air Base Potential Historic District (085) has had some resources removed for the landscape redesign along Aviation Blvd in the early-21st century and the re-alignment of Harbor Road and is recommended for additional research to determine if it remains NRHP eligible.

Buffer Area Resources: Iowa Side

The remainder of the resources on the Iowa side of the buffer area are explored here (See Figure 5). Those in proximity to the airport properties are recorded regardless of age. However, those in the denser urban/suburban setting of Sergeant Bluff were only recorded if they were deemed to be approximately 45-years-of-age or older; all others are listed in the appended Resource Inventory Spreadsheet. All photos in this section were taken by Tallgrass Archaeology LLC staff between March 24th and April 11th, 2024, unless otherwise noted.

Project Inventory No. 086

Name: Wood Ward, Douglas (owner) Farm Resource(s): Circa-1930 House, 1930 Garage,

1950s Barn, 1950s Cattle Shed, 1970s Hav Shed, 1960s Steel Bins (2), 1970s Steel Bins, (2), 1960s

Address/Location: 2224 Banner Avenue, Sargeant Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 223896.19,4697699.35 Exterior Materials: Brick, Asphalt Shingles, Wood

Metal, Concrete

Looking east.

Preliminary Description: This house is on the survey boundary, while the associated agricultural buildings are outside of it to southeast. The house is a two-story, hip-roofed Colonial Revival with paired windows on its second story, ornamentation around its front entrance consisting of grouped columns and a decorative, denticulated cornice, and a stepped brick chimney on its west wall. Its fenestration appears to be historic. The house is covered with asphalt shingles and brick walls. Elsewhere on the property are several mid-20th century barns, bins, and sheds.

Preliminary Significance: This subject house and farm are recommended preliminarily eligible for the NRHP under Criterion C, for the architectural merit and integrity of a farmstead site that was active in the first half of the 20th century. Further research may find that the house or entire farm site is also eligible under Criterion A or B for associations to historical people or events.

Project Inventory No. 087

Name: Parvu, Albert Jr & Kathryn (owners) Farm Resource(s): 1860 House, 1967 Det. Garage, 1940 Det. Garage, 1930 Barn; Modern Trailer House

Address/Location: 2219 Port Neal Rd., Sergeant Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 223729.556,4697733.125

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingles, Aluminum Siding, Concrete Foundation

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Description: This 1860s house retains some historic materials and design elements, such as its truncated, pyramidal hip roof. It has a roughly square, massed form, with moderate eaves, and a small bay. Its fenestration appears to be historic. Its siding is aluminum, though historic siding may be intact behind it, and its foundation appears to have been covered in concrete. The barn on the property may be covered in replacement materials as well, though some historic material appears to be in place as well.

Looking west.

Preliminary Significance: This subject house and farm are recommended preliminarily eligible for the NRHP under Criterion C, for the architectural merit and integrity of a farmstead site that was active in the second half of the 18th century and first half of the 20th century. Further research may find that the house or entire building site is also eligible under Criterion A or B for associations to historical people or events.

Project Inventory No. 088

Name: Christianson, Terry & Michelle (owners) House

Resource(s): 1930 House, 1930 Det. Garage

Address/Location: 2209 Port Neal Rd., Sergeant Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 223758.51,4697890.49

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingles, Vinyl Siding, Concrete Block Foundation

Looking northwest.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is side-gabled. It sits on a concrete block foundation. Its walls have been covered with vinyl siding, and its roof is asphalt shingled. The house has mixed fenestration and has modern wood decks, ramps, and stairs. The garage appears to be covered with metal materials. The garage also has exposed rafter ends under its eaves.

Preliminary Significance: The subject property appears to have poor historic integrity, which is likely to preclude its NRHP eligibility. It is therefore preliminarily recommended not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 089

Name: Christianson, Doris E (owner) House Resource(s): 1920 House, 1915 House, 1981 House, 1970 Det. Garage, 1981 Att. Garage, Shed Address/Location: 2215 Port Neal Rd., Sergeant

Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 223746.93,4697812.13

Exterior Materials: Asphalt/Metal Shingles, Vinyl/Aluminum Siding, Concrete/Concrete Block Foundation

Looking west-southwest.

Preliminary Description: The south house on this property is a front-gabled, Craftsman-style dwelling that has been covered with modern materials. Its roof and the roof of the enclosed porch have been covered with steel. The siding is a modern covering. The fenestration appears to be modern. The foundation is concrete block. The north house is covered with vinyl siding and asphalt shingles. It has modern replacement windows as well. It appears that the gabled wings of the house may also be later additions. The other buildings on the property are later additions, mostly of the modern era.

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Significance: The two houses on this property appear to have poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude them from NRHP eligibility. Because of this, they are preliminarily recommended not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 090

Name: Mogensen, Dane L (owner) Farm

Resource(s): 1900 House, 1940 Det. Garage, 1940

Grain Storage, 1900 Crib (2), 1900 Granary Address/Location: 216 Warrior Rd., Sergeant

Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 223349.71,4698855.52

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingles, Steel Siding, Tile Block Foundation

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This cross-gabled house is two-stories in height and has a single-story enclosed front porch. The building is covered with metal siding, though the historic siding may be intact behind that. Its roof is asphalt shingle. It sits on a clay tile block foundation. The building appears to have historic fenestration, including at least some wood, Craftsman-style windows. The agricultural buildings on the site appear to have good integrity of materials, including the gabled cribs.

Looking south.

Preliminary Significance: This subject house and farm are recommended preliminarily eligible for the NRHP under Criterion C, for the architectural merit and integrity of a farmstead site that was active in the first half of the 20th century. Further research may find that the house or entire building site is also eligible under Criterion A or B for associations to historical people or events.

Name: City of Sergeant Bluff (owner) House

Resource(s): 1920 House

Address/Location: 2184 Port Neal Rd., Sergeant

Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 223846.02,4698451.57

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingles, Vinyl Siding,

Concrete Foundation

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Description: This house appears to be heavily modified with additions and the application of modern materials such as vinyl siding. Its original body is a hipped roof bungalow.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house is heavily modified, which is likely to preclude it from NRHP eligibility under any criteria.

Project Inventory No. 092

Name: Leuenhagen, Randall G & Mary J (owners)

Resource(s): 1925 House, 1920 Det. Garage, 2013

Det. Garage, Shed, 2001 Utility Building

Address/Location: 2239 Andrew Ave., Sergeant

Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222136.16,4697627.96

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingles, Vinyl Siding,

Concrete Block Foundation

Looking northwest.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is cross-gabled and appears to have a number of additions. The house has been further modified by the enclosure of the porches, the replacement of windows with modern, vinyl inserts, and the application of modern, vinyl siding. The detached garage has two single-stall, overhead garage doors and a hipped roof, but it appears to also be heavily modified materially. The house has a dormer on its rear wing that appears to have been fully wrapped with vinyl as well. The other outbuildings on this property are modern.

Preliminary Significance: This property appears to have poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from NRHP eligibility. Because of this, property is preliminarily recommended not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 093

Name: Marrinan, John (owner) House

Resource(s): 1973 House

Address/Location: 2226 Andrew Ave., Sergeant

Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 4144750.3,3615295.9

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingles, Aluminum,

Concrete Block Foundation

Looking east.

Preliminary Description: This 1973 house has a side-hipped, asphalt shingled roof. At its north end are two single-stall, overhead garage doors. The house is covered with aluminum siding. Its windows appear to be replacements, but that is not confirmed.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house has mixed historic integrity and is of a very common, standardized design. It does not appear to hold significant elements of architectural design or construction and has no known associations with significant events or people of the past. For these reasons, the house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Lieber Land Holdings LLC Quarry

Resource(s): Circa-1970 House Address/Location: 1141 225th St

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 221920.17,4697345.13

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt Shingle

Looking northwest.

Preliminary Description: All that remains on this former farm site is a circa-1970 Ranch/Prefab house. It has a single-stall overhead garage door at one end. It has asphalt shingles and metal or vinyl siding. The windows appear to be wood. The other buildings noted in the assessor report (barn and shed) are now gone. The site is currently being used for earth, gravel, and materials storage.

Preliminary Significance: The house on this property does not demonstrate architectural merits of design or construction. It also does not appear to have significant associations to people or events of the past. The rest of the site has very poor historic integrity. For these reasons, the subject property is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 095

Name: Marx Distribution Warehouse

Resource(s): 1977 Shed

Address/Location: 2827 225th St

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222487.29,4697305.92

Exterior Materials: Metal

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a side-gabled, metal warehouse.

Preliminary Significance: This building is simple in design and construction. It is not yet 50 years of age. It is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 096

Name: Lou Ann Mogensen Trust (owner) Farm

Resource(s): 1938 House, 1938 Carport, 1938

Barn, 1938 Poultry House

Address/Location: 308 D. St. S., Sergeant Bluff, IA

51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 223460.95,4699264.61

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingles, Wood Lap

Siding, Concrete Block Foundation

Looking east.

Preliminary Description: This cottage is side-gabled with triangular knee braces under its eaves and the eaves of its gabled front porch, which is supported by a wide cornice and classical columns. The house has wood, Craftsman-style windows, wood lap siding per the county assessor, and a concrete block foundation. Its roof is covered with asphalt shingles. The historic-aged agricultural buildings could not be viewed from public rights of way. The setting is somewhat weakened by the expansion of residential neighborhoods all around it and other modern developments.

Preliminary Significance: This building retains excellent historic integrity and is recommended preliminarily eligible for the NRHP under Criterion C. The agricultural buildings on the property may also be eligible/contributing, but they could not be viewed from rights-of-way. Further research would be required to confirm additional eligibilities.

Project Inventory No. 097

Name: Sioux-Preme Packing Co (owner)

Warehouse

Resource(s): Circa-1960 Warehouses, 1975 Addition, 1995 Additions (2), 1999 Additions (3), 2023 Additions (3)

Address/Location: 6201 Southbridge Dr., Sergeant Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222492.34,4699488.96

Exterior Materials: Concrete, Metal, Rubber

Membrane

Looking southeast.

Preliminary Description: This warehouse appears in the 1960s aerial photographs as a rectangular construction that replaced former military installment buildings that had been on the site. It has multiple additions that have been added since 1975, including substantial ones in 1999 and 2023. The building's walls are mostly concrete and metal.

Preliminary Significance: This building has been heavily modified in the modern age and is not likely to represent significant associations of any NRHP context. It is therefore recommended not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 098

Name: Sioux Harbor LLC (owner) Hotel

Resource(s): 1970 Hotel, 1970 Outbuilding

Address/Location: 6166 Harbor Dr., Sergeant

Bluff, IA 51054

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 222723.13,4699549.02

Exterior Materials: Brick Veneer, Asphalt Shingle,

Vinyl, Metal

Looking east.

Preliminary Description: This cross-gabled, two-story hotel building is roofed with asphalt shingles. Its main walls are brick veneer, except around its metal windows, which are surrounded by vinyl or metal siding. The building is surrounded by concrete parking lots.

Preliminary Significance: This building is standard in design and function. It has no distinctive characteristics and does not appear to have significant associations to people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject building is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 221124.61,4701094.67

Exterior Materials: Wood, Steel, Asphalt, Vinyl,

Other

Looking west.

Preliminary Description: This farmstead contains two circa-1925 houses. One is a cross-gabled, 1.5-story building with asphalt shingles, vinyl siding, and vinyl casement windows. This house also has enclosed porches and what appears to be a later, hip-roofed addition. It sits at the southeast corner of the site. North of it is the other house, which is a single-story in height with lower cross gables. This house is also covered with vinyl siding and asphalt shingles, and it also has replacement windows. Off its north wall is what appears to be an attached garage addition or hyphenation to one of the historic garages, which would also have been modified with modern exterior materials. Other buildings on the site include two historic garages, a 1970s grain bin, modern grain bins, and a 1993 shed.

Looking west.

Preliminary Significance: The two historic houses and at least one or more of the historic garages appear to be heavily modified and covered with modern materials. These buildings do not appear to represent any historical significance. Most of the farm's outbuildings and structures are modern in age. For these reasons, the subject farmstead is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 100

Name: Railroad Grade

Address/Location: Linear resource through east part of the buffer area

Resources: Railroad Track

UTMs (Z15,NAD83):

Exterior Materials: earth, stone, steel

Crossing near the intersection of Harbor Dr and 8th Street, looking north.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a railroad grade with a single operating railroad track. Spur tracks that once entered the airport/airbase area off of them have since been removed. Materials are also maintained and likely replaced over time.

Preliminary Significance: Sioux City has long been linked to railroads. The city's growth and development has paralleled that of the rails that traveled through the region. The first railroad built in the city was the Sioux City and Pacific, completed in 1868. This line was a spur that connected Sioux City to Union Pacific routes in Nebraska. Originally intended to run due west, a change in the charter meant the eventual route ran south to Missouri Valley, Iowa, where it joined the Chicago and Northwestern, then west to Blair, Nebraska, and on to Fremont, Nebraska, where it connected with the Union Pacific (A. Warner & Co., 1890: 122-123). Today, only the Union Pacific trackage runs through the buffer area without any stops or depots. Because of the diminished integrity of materials and setting and the removal of former spur tracks, this railroad grade is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP. None of the related signage or other related infrastructure appeared to be historic in age.

Project Inventory No. 101

Name: Wing Dams

Address/Location: Along the Iowa bank of the Missouri River in the vicinity of the project

Resources: 11+ wing dams

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): Linear Resources along

Iowa Side of Missouri River

Exterior Materials: Earth, Stone

Looking southeast from Dakota City, Nebraska.

Preliminary Description: Wing dams were first placed here in the first half of the 20th century, to aid with navigation, erosion, and transportation along the river. The wing dams are still present, and they may have been worked on or improved over the years. The wing dams appear to be of standard construction with earth and rock/riprap.

Preliminary Significance: Wing dams and dykes of various forms have been in use on the Missouri River since the 18th century. The wing dams observed in this area are believed to be a rock wall or similar type, mostly found from the 1940s onwards (Ferrell, 1995). The wing dams along the Iowa side of the Missouri River in the buffer area appear to be standard examples of the rock wall design, unlikely to be significant for their design or construction methods. They are also unlikely to draw significance from individual associations to significant people or events; their role in Missouri River flood control and navigation is simply too small. Any potential significance would likely come from a large river-wide context of flood control and channel improvement projects. The wing dams in this buffer area are recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Discussion: Sixteen resources were preliminarily evaluated in this part of the survey. Four of them were found to be preliminarily eligible or preliminarily eligible if given future study. These five resources were:

- Proj. Inv. No. 086
- Proj. Inv. No. 087
- Proj. Inv. No. 090
- Proj. Inv. No. 096

No potential historic districts were identified in this component of the buffer area.

Modern resources of this area are listed in Appendix C.

Buffer Area Resources: Nebraska Side

All resources within the buffer area, on the Nebraska side of the Missouri River are within the corporate limits of Dakota City, Nebraska (See Figure 6) and are presented here. The windshield-level reconnaissance of the buffer area included the identification, photography, and preliminary recommendations for all resources approximately 45-years-of-age or older. They are described and summarized in this section of the report. All other resources here are included with the appended Resource Inventory Spreadsheet. All photos in this section were taken by Tallgrass Archaeology LLC staff between March 24th and April 11th, 2024, unless otherwise noted.

Project Inventory No. 102

Name: Emmanuel Lutheran Church

Resource(s): 1860 Church

Address/Location: 1500 Hickory St, Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218783.42,4701246.74

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt Shingle

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a small, wood, Greek Revival Church. It is covered with wood siding and asphalt shingles.

Preliminary Significance: This building is listed in the NRHP. It was inventoried under number DK01-001, and its NRHP reference number is 69000129. Per the nomination materials for the building, it is representative of pre-statehood Lutheran settlement in Nebraska. It is also one of very few Greek Revival buildings in the state.

Project Inventory No. 103

Name: Miranda, Lorena, et. Al. (owners) House

Resource(s): 1975 House

Address/Location: 1620 Hickory St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83):

Exterior Materials: Metal, Veneer, Asphalt Shingle,

Concrete

Looking east.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a circa-1975 split-level house with asphalt shingles on its hipped main body and gabled wing. It is covered with metal and stone or synthetic stone veneer sidings. The wing contains a pair of single-stall, overhead garage doors. The windows may be historic. The house sits on a concrete foundation.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not appear likely to demonstrate significant elements of design or construction. It also is not likely to be associated with significant people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Cravens, Linda (owner) House

Resource(s): 1975 House

Address/Location: 1410 Hickory St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218900.83,4701768.72

Exterior Materials: Wood/Composite, Asphalt

Shingle, Concrete Block

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This side-gabled house is covered with asphalt shingles. It appears to have wood/composite siding that may be original. Its windows also appear to be all or mostly original. The front door is accessed by a set of poured concrete stairs. The foundation is concrete block.

Preliminary Significance: Despite overall good historic integrity, this house does not appear to demonstrate significant elements of design or architecture. It also does not appear to exemplify significant associations with events or people of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended preliminarily not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 105

Name: Rose, Dianne E (owner) House

Resource(s): 1970 House, 1970 Att. Garage, Shed

(2), Swimming Pool

Address/Location: 501 River Rd., Dakota City, NE

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219011.07,4700994.64

Exterior Materials: Brick Veneer, Stone, Asphalt

Shingle

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a rambling, Ranch-style house with hipped rooflines. It has a broad, brick chimney that rises from the back or near the back corner. The house has a low-pitched roof with moderately wide eaves and covered with asphalt shingles. The house is brick or brick veneer. It has a variety of fenestration sizes and styles, and they may be historic in age. Its setting is positioned in a wooded area overlooking the Missouri River.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house may be architect designed. It is a fine example of the Ranch-style locally, where few other examples of this caliber exist. The house may be found to be eligible under Criterion C of the NRHP, though that would require further research to ascertain. It does not appear likely to be eligible under Criterion A or Criterion B, but that too would require further research.

Project Inventory No. 106

Name: Gomez, Maria (owner) Garage

Resource(s): 1930 Garage, Det. Garage, Shed (7)

Address/Location: 1125 Olive St., Dakota City, NE

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219214.72,4702061.17

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Description: All that remains at this property is a large garage with an entry door and two overhead garage doors on its south wall. These doors appear to be modern replacements. The walls of the building are wood. The roof is covered with asphalt shingles. A small, floating tool shed sits off the southeast corner of the garage.

Preliminary Significance: Although this garage retains its wood siding, it does not appear to demonstrate significant elements of design or construction. Alone, it also does not appear to exemplify any significant historical associations. For these reasons, the subject building is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 107

Name: Blue Door Properties LLC (owner) House Resource(s): 1920 House, Det. Garage, Shed

Address/Location: 723 Olive St., Dakota City, NE

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219681.59,4702013.34

Exterior Materials: Metal, Concrete Block, Asphalt

Shingle

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: The subject house has an asymmetrical, gabled roof covered with asphalt shingles. It has an enclosed porch on its southwest corner. The walls are covered with modern metal siding. The fenestration has been replaced by modern, vinyl inserts. There is an attached garage addition on its east side. It sits on a concrete block foundation.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house has poor historic integrity resulting from replacement and covering materials, an addition, and the modification of its front porch. This likely precludes it from representing any historical or architectural significance. The house is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 108

Name: Johnson, John R (owner) House

Resource(s): 1890 House, Det. Garage

Address/Location: 722 Olive St., Dakota City, NE

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219670.65,4701956.93

Exterior Materials: Wood/Plywood, Asphalt

Shingles

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This house is a side-gabled building with a small, front-gabled wing, a hip-roofed wing on its side, and an enclosed, shed-roofed porch. The wood siding does not appear to be original. The fenestration appears to be mixed. Its roofs are covered with asphalt shingles.

Preliminary Significance: The house does not appear to retain good historic integrity, which likely precludes it from NRHP eligibility. It is therefore recommended preliminarily not eligible.

Name: Schleusener, Ray L & Colleen (owners)

House

Resource(s): 1962 House, 1962 Att. Garage, Shed

Address/Location: 1014 Olive St., Dakota City, Ne 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219360.681,4701998.434

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingles,

Concrete Block

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This side-gabled Ranch house has slightly unaligned rooflines for its main body and the attached garage. The house appears to be covered in modern vinyl siding. It has asphalt shingles. It sits on a concrete block. Its fenestration may be modern.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not appear to demonstrate significant architecture or represent significant associations to people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 110

Name: Chandler, William J & Joan A (owners)

House

Resource(s): 1965 House, Det. Garage, Shed

Address/Location: 422 N. 11th St., Dakota City, NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219329.37,4701988.21

Exterior Materials: Wood, Plywood/Hardboard,

Asphalt Shingles, Concrete Block

Looking southeast.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a single-story, Ranch-style house with both gabled and hipped rooflines. It has a recessed entry and a variety of windows that appear to now be modern replacements. The house appears to retain its wood siding. Its roof is asphalt-shingled. It sits on a concrete block foundation. It has an attached garage.

Preliminary Significance: Despite retaining overall good historic integrity, it is weakened by replacement fenestration. The house does not likely demonstrate exceptional architecture or historical associations. The house is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 111

Name: Ludwick, John A & Deborah A (owners)

Exterior Materials: Wood

Jan. 2018, Dakota County Assessor Photo, looking east.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a side-gabled house with mixed fenestration and historic wood board siding. The windows are in a variety of styles and sides. The house has little to no eave overhangs. Preliminary Significance: This house appears to have poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from demonstrating any significant associations of history or architecture. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Gann, Matthew A (owner) House

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219351.94,4701916.63

Exterior Materials: Wood, Metal

Looking northwest.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a side-gabled house with no rake overhangs on its gabled ends. The house has metal siding. Its fenestration may be historic. There is an attached garage on its north end.

Preliminary Significance: Despite retaining overall good historic integrity, the house is not believed to represent significant design or construction. The house is also not likely to hold associations to significant people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 113

Name: Magana, Jose M (owner) House

Address/Location: 1009 Vine St., Dakota City, NE

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219374.41,4701915.29

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingle

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a side-gabled house with narrow eave overhangs and asphalt shingles. The walls are covered with vinyl. Its windows may be historic but that was unclear during the field survey. The house has an attached garage at one end, under the same roofline.

Preliminary Significance: This house appears to have poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from demonstrating any significant associations of history or architecture. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 114

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This house is gabled and roofed with asphalt shingles. The walls are covered with a variety of wood materials. Its fenestration appears to be modern casement windows, and a modern patio sliding door has been inserted on one side. The patio door is not accessed by stairs or raised deck. The house sits on a concrete or concrete block foundation.

Preliminary Significance: This house appears to have poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from demonstrating any significant associations of history or architecture. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 119

Name: KMJ Investments LLC (owner) Warehouses and Office

Resource(s): 1970 Office (1), 1980 Warehouses (3)

Address/Location: 300 N. 14th St., Dakota City, NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218987.75,4701854.58

Exterior Materials: Concrete, Metal

Looking northwest.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a factory that produces sports and golf turf equipment. The complex includes one 1970s building covered in concrete. It has a flat roof. The complex also has three 1980s warehouses with gabled ends and metal roofs and walls.

Looking south.

Preliminary Significance: These buildings are mostly modern in age. The main building is potentially historic in age, but that is not confirmed. None of the buildings appear to be significant architecturally, and their recent years leave them with very little chance to represent significant people or events of history, at least as they currently appear. Their eligibility may be worth revisiting at a future time. For now, the subject buildings are preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This single-story, side-gabled house is covered with asphalt shingles and vinyl siding. It has historic, wood windows. It is accessed by a wood deck with wood stairs and wood handrails on the north and east sides. The house sits on a concrete block foundation.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not appear to demonstrate significant architecture or represent significant associations to people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 121

Name: Prince, Gary W & Sharon E (owners)

House

Resource(s): 1890 House, Det. Garage

Address/Location: 223 N. 14th St., Dakota City, NE

7831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218936.180,4701763.680

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingle, Wood,

Concrete

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is a 1½-story cottage with a truncated, pyramidal hipped roof covered with asphalt shingles. It has gabled dormers on its roof, and its I has a small, hip-roofed porch with what appear to be replacement materials. Its fenestration is composed of modern, vinyl replacements. There is still wood material along its soffits.

Preliminary Significance: Although this house retains some of its historical characteristics of design, the house has overall poor historic integrity. The walls are covered with modern siding, the windows are replacements, and the porch appears to have been modified as well. For these reasons, the subject house does not appear likely to be found significant under any NRHP criterion and is therefore preliminarily recommended not eligible.

Name: Rager, Danny & Lillian (owners) House Resource(s): 1940 House, 1940 Att. Garage

Address/Location: 215 N. 13th St., Dakota City, NE

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219047.28,4701736.37

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingles

Looking west.

Preliminary Description: This house is a cross-gabled variant of a Ranch or Ranchette house. It has asphalt shingles and vinyl siding. The windows may be historic, but they appear to be replacements with faux muntins on their upper sashes. There is a small overhang over the front entry door at its southeast corner. It is accessed by a small, modern wood and vinyl deck. Off the south end is an attached garage.

Preliminary Significance: This house appears to have poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from demonstrating any significant associations of history or architecture. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 123

Name: O'Dell, Dan & Mary E (owners) House

Resource(s): 1900 House, Det. Garage

Address/Location: 220 N. 13th St., Dakota City, NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219046.568,4701740.087

Exterior Materials: Wood, Plywood/Hardboard, Concrete

Looking east.

Preliminary Description: This house is one-story with a hipped roof. Its front wall has a canted bay on each end. Each bay has a Cottage-style window on its front wall that features a rectangular patterned upper lite. The house is sided with hardboard. Its roof is asphalt shingles. At least some of its windows are historic. It sits on a concrete foundation. Between the two bays on the façade is a pedimented porch roof with vertical wood siding in its pediment. The porch consists of four modern wood posts and modern wood decking. It is accessed by a modern wood step.

Preliminary Significance: This house retains some historic elements of design and craftsmanship, such as some historic windows, but its integrity is not strong. The house does not appear to demonstrate strong elements of architecture. It does not appear to hold strong associations to significant events or people of the past. For these reasons, it is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 124

Name: RBS Enterprises LLC (owner) House

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This house is one-story tall with a hipped, asphalt-shingled roof. Its walls are covered with wood/plywood panels, except around the windows where there is wood shingle siding. The windows themselves are modern, vinyl casement windows. The front door is accessed by modern wood steps with a wood handrail.

Preliminary Significance: This house has very poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from demonstrating any significant associations of history or architecture. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219143.34,4701748.34

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingles,

Concrete Block

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a side-gabled house covered with asphalt shingles. It has vinyl siding. Its windows appear to be vinyl. Its front door is accessed by a concrete pad. Off its west, gabled wall is a lower, side-gabled garage addition.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not appear to demonstrate significant architecture or represent significant associations to people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219161.818,4701748.666

Exterior Materials: Wood/Hardboard, Asphalt

Shingles

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a side-gabled, 1½-story house. It is covered with asphalt shingles and wood hardboard that is not original. The front porch has been removed. The fenestration may be historic, consisting of multi-lite sashes.

Preliminary Significance: The house has overall weak historic integrity. It does not appear to demonstrate significant design or construction. The house does not appear to hold significant association to people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: T.J. Horak LLC (owner) House

Resource(s):1900 House, Shed

Address/Location: 1217 Myrtle St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219096.11,4701672.60

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt Shingles

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is one-story in height and has a truncated, pyramidal roof. Its wood siding appears to be a later replacement, and the stone or synthetic veneer around its front entry is modern. The house appears to have at least some wood, multi-lite windows, though their horizontal lites may indicate that they too are later replacements.

Preliminary Significance: This house has mixed/fair historic integrity and does not appear to strongly represent historic design or construction. It does not appear to have significant associations to significant events or people of the past. It is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 128

Name: Jorico Rentals LLC (owner) House

Resource(s): 1930 House

Address/Location: 1309 Myrtle St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219029.77,4701679.39

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt Shingles

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Description: This resource is an American Foursquare house with a truncated, pyramidal, hipped roof. It has what appears to be later replacement wood board siding; original materials may be intact behind that. Its front porch has been removed and replaced with a modern deck. Its fenestration may be historic, at least in part. Its roof is covered with asphalt shingles.

Preliminary Significance: The American Foursquare is a very common dwelling type in the American Midwest. The subject house is not a distinctive or particularly well-preserved example of that type. Despite having overall good historic integrity, it is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 129

Name: Harris, Bradley A (owner) House

Resource(s): 1968 House, 1968 Att. Garage

Address/Location: 204 N. 14th St., Dakota City, NE

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Description: This Ranch-style house has a hipped, asphalt-shingled roof. Its walls have been covered with vinyl siding, and its windows are mostly modern replacements, though the Chicago-style picture window may be historic. The house has a concrete foundation. Off its north side is an attached, hip-roofed garage with modern materials.

Preliminary Significance: This house appears to have poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from demonstrating any significant associations of history or architecture. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 130

Name: Korthuis Trustees (owners) House

Resource(s): 1928 House

Address/Location: 203 N. 14th St., Dakota City, NE

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218930.47,4701688.74

Exterior Materials: Metal, Vinyl

Looking northwest.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a very small, narrow house. It has a steel-covered roof and vinyl siding. It has at least some historic fenestration, including a wood, Craftsman-style window on its narrow façade. Its front door is covered by a small, pedimented roof with two wood triangular knee braces and metal covering.

Preliminary Significance: This house appears to have weak historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from demonstrating any significant associations of history or architecture. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP. The house was previously inventoried under number DK-01-021 (in 1986) and recommended for further information; however, more recent changes to the house leave it with diminished integrity and a low likelihood of being found eligible.

Exterior Materials: Wood, Vinyl

Looking west-northwest.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a simple, hip-roofed, Ranch-style house. It is covered with asphalt shingles and vinyl siding. The house has a garage with similar materials and a hipped roof. The house has an entry door that is accessed by a large, modern deck with wood handrails and wood steps. The fenestration appears to be modern.

Preliminary Significance: This house is heavily modified, and it is therefore recommended preliminarily not eligible for the NRHP.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218883.27,4701684.89

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Concrete, Asphalt Shingles, Plywood/Hardboard, Brick Veneer

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This house was built in about 1920 per the county assessor. The house appears to be heavily modified with the application of modern materials, the replacement of windows, and the addition of a large wing. Its two-story body has a hipped roof, modern casement windows and a canted bay on its first story. The large wing has a hipped roof with a wide overhead garage door and a pedimented roof over its front entry door.

Preliminary Significance: This house appears to have very poor historic integrity, which may preclude any representation of architectural or historic significance. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 133

Name: Salud, Quezada & Valdavino, Mayreli M (owners) House

Resource(s): 1900 House, 1900 Att. Garage, Shed

Address/Location: 1423 Myrtle St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218852.75,4701687.61

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingle

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This house is 1½-story in height. It is gabled with a small, gabled wall dormer, a form that was discussed by Kay et al. (1987) as one that is representative of ethnic migration to the area. The house has been heavily modified, however, as it has been covered with modern materials, given replacement windows, and added onto with a large, attached garage addition.

Preliminary Significance: Despite representing a previously explored form of significance, its heavily modified state likely precludes it from representing any significance under any criteria of the NRHP. The building is therefore preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218811.171,4701651.791

Exterior Materials: Vinyl/Metal, Asphalt Shingle

Looking west-southwest.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is a single-story, hip-roofed dwelling that is covered with asphalt shingles and vinyl or metal siding. The house has an open front porch that has been modified by replacement flooring, replacement balustrades, replacement posts, and possibly replacement cornices.

The building may have historic fenestration, though some on its south wall has been replaced by a patio-style door.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not have strong integrity, which may preclude it from demonstrating significant elements of architecture or history. The building, for these reasons, is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 135

Resource(s): 1900 House, 1900 Att. Garage

Address/Location: 122 N. 15th St., Dakota City, NE

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218847.03,4701651.58

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingle,

Concrete Block

Looking southeast.

Preliminary Description: This single-story, cross-hipped house appears to be heavily modified. It has an addition with two garage stalls and what appear to be other additions on the back side. The house has been covered with modern vinyl siding. Its fenestration appears to be mixed. The front of the house has a small, pedimented front porch roof with two wood columns and a concrete porch floor.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house appears to have diminished historic integrity because of additions and replacement historic materials. The house does not appear to represent significant elements of design or construction. It also does not appear to hold historical associations to significant people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 136

Name: Burrell, Kari A & David C (owners) House

Resource(s): 1900 House, Shed (2)

Address/Location: 123 N. 14th St., Dakota City, NE

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218923.38,4701644.71

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingle, Vinyl,

Concrete Block

Looking south-southwest.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is a modified American Foursquare with gabled wall dormers on at least two sides. It has a hipped roof covered with asphalt shingles. Its walls are covered with vinyl siding, and its windows appear to be at least mostly replacements. There is vertical replacement siding in the gabled wall dormers. There is one diamond-shaped window on the first story that may be historic. The house has an open porch with a hipped, asphalt-shingled roof. It has wood, square, tapered columns on brick piers. The porch has a poured concrete floor.

Preliminary Significance: The American Foursquare is a very common dwelling type in the American Midwest. Though the house retains some of its historic features, such as gabled wall dormers and an open porch, the house has weakened historic integrity because of the material replacements. The house does not appear likely to sufficiently represent any significant contexts, and it is therefore recommended preliminarily not eligible for the NRHP.

Looking southeast

Preliminary Description: This resource is one of the older houses in the surveyed area of the city. Its 1856 construction year was reported by the county assessor, and it did appear in the 1886 Sanborn maps for the city, the oldest edition identified. It has at least some wood siding intact, and its windows appear to be at least wood and historic, if not original. The porch has a hipped-roof and has been enclosed. It sits on a concrete block foundation. The single story rear wing also appears in the Sanborn map.

Preliminary Significance: This house warrants further research to better understand its history and integrity, and to determine its eligibility for the NRHP.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219035.95,4701636.67

Exterior Materials: Brick Venee, Wood, Concrete

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a front-gabled cottage with brick veneer walls and wood siding in its upper gable. The house has wood, 2/2 fenestration with horizontal lites. Its front door is accessed by a concrete deck with concrete, capped brick sidewalls.

Preliminary Significance: Despite what appears to be good integrity, this house does not appear to be of significant design or construction. Its simple plan does not appear to represent significance under Criterion C. The house does not appear to demonstrate significant associations under Criteria A or Criteria B either. The house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP for these reasons.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a front-gabled cottage with a low-pitched roof. It has been covered with replacement vinyl siding, though at least some of its windows appear to be historic in age. The roof is asphalt shingled. The garage may retain more historic wood materials than the house.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not appear to represent significant aspects of design or construction. It does not appear to hold associations to significant events or people of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a simple, Ranch or Ranchette house with side gables. It has a modern wood trellis across its façade. The trellis is supported by wood posts and is surrounded by vinyl handrails. Its fenestration may be entirely composed of vinyl, replacement casement windows. Its roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Its exterior walls are covered with wood.

Preliminary Significance: This house appears to be considerably modified with modern windows and other exterior additions/changes. It is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Chavez, Jorge M & Jimine, Vivianna P

(owners) House

Resource(s): 1890 House, Shed

Address/Location: 1114 Myrtle St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219230.810,4701622.585

Exterior Materials: Wood, Vinyl, Asphalt Shingles,

Concrete Block

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This single-story building has no eaves overhang. It has a hipped roof. It is covered with vinyl, wood, and asphalt shingles. The 2018 county assessor photograph of the house showed that it has a false front on the north side, but it has apparently since been removed. The house has a mixture of fenestration, and its doors are accessed by modern, wood decks.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house appears to be of low historic integrity with some replacement materials and the recent removal of its false-front façade, which would have constituted a defining characteristic. It is not known if this building was historically a house or if it served another function. The poor integrity appears to preclude it from representing any historical significance. For these reasons, it is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Preliminary Description: This side-gabled house has narrow eave overhangs. It has wood/hardboard siding and appears to retain at least some wood fenestration. The house has a door that is accessed by a small, wood stair or deck. Its roof is asphalt-shingled. Its setting is wooded, parklike, and near the Missouri River.

Preliminary Significance: Despite retaining overall good historic integrity, it is weakened by replacement fenestration. The house does not likely demonstrate exceptional architecture or historical associations. The house is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Preliminary Description: This commercial building is made mostly of concrete block. Its slightly recessed entrance has a metal awning over it. It has wood siding and a small, brick planter in front of a series of mid-century hopper or awning style windows, similar to ones on its east wall. Part of the concrete block portion of the front wall has a diamond pattern etched into it below the cornice. The building has a flat roof covered with rubber membrane.

Preliminary Significance: Despite retaining overall good historic integrity, it is weakened by replacement fenestration. The building does not likely demonstrate exceptional architecture or historical associations. The house is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a two-story, side-gabled house. It has wood hardboard siding that is not likely historic, and asphalt shingles cover its roof. It sits on a concrete foundation. Its fenestration appears to be composed of modern replacements. It has decorative modern shutters. The house has an open front porch with a hip-roofed, asphalt-shingled roof with a wide cornice and classical columns on a poured concrete floor. The house has a large addition on its back side.

Preliminary Significance: The house does not retain very good historic integrity, which may preclude it from NRHP eligibly. It does not appear likely to represent significant design or construction, and it is not believed to hold significant associations to people or events of the past.

City, NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218809.133,4701512.304

Exterior Materials: Rusticated Concrete Block

Looking west.

Preliminary Description: The subject building has walls of rusticated concrete blocks. It is a flat-roofed commercial building. It is two-stories tall, and its parapet steps down from front to back. The building has ranked windows on its long wall and on its façade. These windows are smaller replacements, and part of the larger window openings are infilled with wood. The front entry door has a transom window and is near the center of the first story of the façade.

Preliminary Significance: Despite having replacement fenestration, this building has fair integrity. Further research may find that it is eligible locally under Criterion C. It may also find that it is eligible under Criterion A or Criterion B as a remnant of the city's late-19 or early-20th century commercial history. This finding is in concurrence with its previous recommendation (DK01-018)

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218838.52,4701503.94

Exterior Materials: Wood/Hardboard, Asphalt

Shingles, Concrete

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This single-story, hip-roofed house is covered with asphalt shingles and wood/hardboard siding. The foundation has been covered with spray-on materials. Its windows appear to be historic in age and wood. They are arranged in pairs and as singles and have decorative, wood shutters and wood trim. The front of the house has a small, shed-roofed overhang over its entry door, which is accessed by a set of poured concrete stairs with decorative metal handrails. A hip-roofed garage with similar materials and vertical-lite, wood windows is hyphenated to the house via a breezeway with ribbons of windows.

Preliminary Significance: Despite overall good historic integrity, this house does not appear to demonstrate significant elements of design or architecture. It also does not appear to exemplify significant associations to events or people of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended preliminarily not eligible for the NRHP.

Address/Location: 1322 Broadway, Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83):

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asbestos, Asphalt

Shingle, Concrete

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This side-gabled building is currently serving as apartments. It is side-gabled and covered with asphalt shingles. It has asbestos siding. Its fenestration consists of all or mostly historic, wood windows. Some of the windows have wood, picket-style shutters. The building has a front porch with a hipped, asphalt-shingled roof. The porch has a concrete floor, and its roof is supported by four large wood posts. A modern wood stair and deck leads to at least one second story living unit.

Preliminary Significance: This apartment building has mixed historic integrity and is not likely to represent significant elements of design or architecture. However, further research may find it is eligible under Criterion A or Criterion B. It is located near the commercial area of the city, and its form is reminiscent of some historic commercial building styles (such as a hotel or other building). Any determination under Criteria A or B will require additional survey work to ascertain.

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 219312.05,4701471.94

Exterior Materials: Brick Veneer, Asphalt Shingles

Looking east-southeast.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a two-level house with a Colonial Revival influence. It has a side-gabled roof covered with asphalt shingles. Its walls are covered with brick veneer on the first story and wood on the upper story. The house appears to have a pent roof on its façade over the first story. The north wall has a side-gabled attached garage. The setting is wooded and overlooks the Missouri River.

Preliminary Significance: Despite retaining overall good historic integrity, the house is not believed to represent significant design or construction. The house is also not likely to hold associations to significant people or events of the past because of its young age. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218951.44,4701414.89

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingle, Brick

Looking north-northeast.

Preliminary Description: This house is a modified American Foursquare. The house has a gable-on-hip, pyramidal-hip roof with a slight flare. It is covered with asphalt shingles and has lower, gabled wall dormers with cornice returns. The house has been given modern, vinyl replacement windows. It has also been covered with vinyl siding. The front porch has been enclosed and only has two windows. The door of the porch has also been removed, though the concrete stairs with low, capped brick sidewalls remains in place, leading to a covered wall. High, wood stairs lead to a second-story apartment. A back porch has also been enclosed. The house sits on a brick foundation.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house has poor historic integrity, which is likely to preclude it from demonstrating any significance under any NRHP Criteria. It is therefore recommended not eligible.

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218914.66,4701427.33

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt Shingles

Looking northwest.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is a gable-front-and-wing dwelling with a dominant, two-story, upright body with wood, ranked, 2/2 windows with wood trim, a wide cornice along its eaves, and a single-story, canted bay on one end. Its north wing of $1\frac{1}{2}$ -stories has an open porch that appears to have replacement wood posts and concrete floor. The wing appears to have historic fenestration as well. The siding is wood lap.

Looking north.

Preliminary Significance: The house appears to retain excellent historic integrity and demonstrate elements of historic design and architecture that may be found eligible under Criterion C of the NRHP. Further research may find that it is also eligible for significant associations under Criteria A or B as well, and its integrity may allow it to represent those significances. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended preliminarily eligible for the NRHP. This finding is in concurrence with the previous recommendation of more research (DK01-019).

Preliminary Description: This resource is a two-story, hip-roofed Free Classic Queen Anne with some of its original design and form. The house has two story cross gables with cornice returns, historic windows that are arranged in pairs and as singles, and an open front porch. The porch has undergone some modern material replacements. The house has asphalt shingles. Its exterior walls are covered with what appears to be replacement siding, though the historic siding may be intact behind it.

Preliminary Significance: This house retains mixed to good historic integrity and may be found to be eligible for the NRHP under Criterion C if given further research. The house is a rare survivor of this late Victorian style in Dakota City, which does not have many large examples like this, though it is relatively unadorned compared to some other examples of the style. Such further research may also show it to be eligible under Criteria A and B.

Its roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Any porches it may have had have been removed and simple, poured concrete steps lead to each door. Preliminary Significance: The subject house appears to have poor historic integrity, which would preclude it from representing any NRHP criteria. Because of this, it is recommended not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 189

Name: Green, George F & Esther M (owners)

Resource(s): 1974 House, 1974 Att. Garage, Shed

Address/Location: 1422 Walnut St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218842.542,4701379.494

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt Shingles,

Looking southeast.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a single-story, side-gabled house. Its roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Its walls are covered with wood/hardboard, and its windows may be modern, but that is uncertain. It sits on a concrete foundation. A front-gabled garage is hyphenated to the house by a small breezeway.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not appear likely to demonstrate significant elements of design or construction. It also is not likely to hold associations to significant people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 190

Name: Stamp, Michael (owner) House

Resource(s): 1900 House, Shed

Address/Location: 1418 Walnut St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218868.403,4701384.543

Exterior Materials: Wood Hardboard, Asphalt

Shingles

Looking south-southeast.

Preliminary Description: The subject house has a front-gabled main body with two historic windows on its second story and a window and door ranked below them on the façade. There is a small, side-gabled wing on one side. The house is covered with wood hardboard siding that is not likely original, but the historic materials may be intact behind it. It has asphalt shingles on its roofs. The house has had some windows removed/enclosed.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house retains mixed levels of historic integrity. It is not demonstrative of significant design or construction, being in a simple form with few elaborations or other details. The house does not appear to represent significant events or people of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 191

Name: Pfister, Jason & Stacie J (owners) House

Resource(s): 1945 House, Det. Garage

Address/Location: 1322 Walnut St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218950.19,4701377.89

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Concrete block, Asphalt

Shingles

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is one-story in height. Its asphalt-shingled roof has a gable-on-hip form. Its walls are covered with vinyl siding. The fenestration may be all or partially historic. Some of the windows meet at the corners of the building. The back side of the property contains a modern garage.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not appear to demonstrate significant architecture or represent significant associations to people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Wilson, Gary MC & Kivergan, Lois

(owners) House

Resource(s): 1926 House, 1926 Att. Garage

Address/Location: 1318 Walnut St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218964.63,4701377.89

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingle, Vinyl,

Concrete Block

Looking south.

Preliminary Description: This single story house has a hipped roof covered with asphalt shingles. The walls are covered with vinyl. The fenestration appears to be historic, wood, multi-lite windows. The front of the house has a hip-roofed porch supported by decorative metal columns on a poured concrete base. The façade also has a built-in garage with a single-stall overhead door.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house has poor historic integrity resulting from replacement and covering materials, and the modification of its front porch. This likely precludes it from representing any historical or architectural significances. The house is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 193

Name: Korthuis, Richard D & Joni K (Trustees) (owners) House

Resource(s): 1920 House, 1920 Att. Garage, Shed

Address/Location: 1413 Hickory St., Dakota City, NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218860.54,4701299.54

Exterior Materials: Metal

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This gable-front-and-wing house has two windows on the second story of its upright body's façade. Below them is a three-part picture window. The house has an east wing with a lower, gabled wing off its end. Off this smaller wing is another addition that is shed roofed and covered with metal. The house's roofs are all covered with metal. Its fenestration is mixed. The house has a shed-roofed addition or porch enclosure on the south wall of its east wing. The house is covered with siding that may be a replacement of historic or modern age.

Preliminary Significance: The house retains poor historic integrity, which likely precludes it from demonstrating any significance under any criterion. The house is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Stines, Mark & Pamela (trustees) (owners)

Address/Location: 220 S. 15th St., Dakota City, NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218826.67,4701309.14

Exterior Materials: Wood, Synthetic Stone Veneer,

Asphalt Shingles

Looking northeast.

Preliminary Description: This single-story, hip-roofed house is capped with asphalt shingles. Its walls are covered with wood and synthetic stone veneer. Its windows may be modern, but that was not confirmed during the field survey. The house has a canted bay on one end. It also has a modern wood deck leading to its front entry door.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not appear likely to demonstrate significant elements of design or construction. It also is not likely to hold associations to significant people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 195

Name: Allen, Gerald L (owner) House

Resource(s):1900 House, Shed

Address/Location: 221 S. 15th St., Dakota City, NE

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218783.82,4701301.89

Exterior Materials: Wood, Asphalt Shingle,

Concrete

Looking west.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a cross-gabled cottage with an asphalt-shingled roof. Its siding appears to be wood but is not likely original. It sits on a concrete foundation. The house appears to retain its wood windows, including one with multiple lites on both sashes. If the house had any porches, they have been enclosed, or on the front, removed.

Preliminary Significance: The house does not appear to retain good historic integrity, which likely precludes it from NRHP eligibility. It is therefore recommended preliminarily not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 196

Name: Anderson, Rean M & Gina C (owners)

Resource(s): 1945 House, Det. Garage (2)

Address/Location: 1521 Hickory St., Dakota City,

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218723.98,4701306.26

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingle, Clay

Block/Brick

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This Minimal Traditional house variant has a front-gabled wing and an exposed, brick chimney on one side. The house is covered with modern, vinyl siding and asphalt shingles. The windows are modern, vinyl inserts with faux muntins. The side-gabled garage is also covered with modern materials. It has a wide, overhead garage door.

Preliminary Significance: This house appears to have poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from demonstrating any significant associations of history or architecture. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 197

PREVIOUS INVENTORY No. DK01-012

Name: Magana, Jose R & Maria E (owners) House

Resource(s): 1900 House

Address/Location: 1601 Hickory St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218676.44,4701306.61

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingles,

Concrete

Looking north-northwest.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is in the gable-front-and-wing form. Its upright body has ranked windows that may be a combination of historic and modern examples. Its roof is asphalt-shingled, including over the enclosed front porch in its front ell. The porch and wing have modern replacement windows. The building is covered with vinyl siding. It sits on a foundation of concrete.

Preliminary Significance: The house does not appear to retain good historic integrity, which likely precludes it from NRHP eligibility. It is therefore recommended preliminarily not eligible. This is a slight deviation from its previous recommendation of more information needed from 1986 (DK01-012).

Project Inventory No. 198

Name: Sanchez, Fabiola & Angel (owners) House

Resource(s): 1955 House

Address/Location: 1611 Hickory St., Dakota City,

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218640.08,4701309.37

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingles,

Concrete Block

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a front-gabled house with little or no eave overhangs. It has asphalt shingles, vinyl siding, and a concrete block foundation. Its windows are modern, vinyl replacements. It sits on a concrete block foundation.

Preliminary Significance: This house does not appear to demonstrate significant architecture or represent significant associations to people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Name: Hartnett, James R (owner) House

Resource(s): 1969 House, Det. Garage

Address/Location: 1621 Hickory St., Dakota City,

NE 67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218607.27,4701310.65

Exterior Materials: Asphalt Shingle, Vinyl,

Concrete

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: The subject house is a side-gabled dwelling with no rake overhangs on its gabled ends. The house has vinyl siding. Its windows may be historic. Its front door is accessed by a set of concrete steps with metal handrails. There is a small, gabled addition on its east wall, where a second entry door is accessed by modern wood steps with wood handrails.

Preliminary Significance: This house appears to have poor historic integrity, which would likely preclude it from demonstrating any significant associations of history or architecture. For these reasons, the subject house is recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

House

Resource(s): 1974 House, Det. Garage, Shed

Address/Location: 319 S. 16th St., Dakota City, NE

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218665.45,4701256.31

Exterior Materials: Wood, Brick Veneer, Asphalt

Shingles

Looking southwest.

Preliminary Description: This resource is a side-gabled, single-story house. Its roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Its walls are covered with varied wood sidings and the façade has brick veneer on its lower portion. Its fenestration may be historic. Its front door is accessed by a wood deck with wood handrails. A side-gabled, attached garage on its south end appears to have historic siding as well.

Preliminary Significance: Despite retaining overall good historic integrity, it is weakened by replacement fenestration. The house does not likely demonstrate exceptional architecture or historical associations. The house is therefore recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 201

Name: Rouse, Kathyrn S (owner) House

Resource(s): 1880 House, Det. Garage, Shed (3)

Address/Location: 1601 Elm St., Dakota City, NE

67831

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218670.86,4701179.24

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingles,

Concrete Block

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This single-story, side-gabled cottage is sided with vinyl and a synthetic stone veneer. It has historic, wood, 6/6 windows, at least on its street-facing façade. The roof is covered with asphalt shingles, and its foundation is concrete block. A high chimney that rises from its roof ridge has been covered with concrete parging or stucco.

Preliminary Significance: The subject house has poor historic integrity, which appears to preclude it from representing any NRHP criteria. For these reasons, it is preliminarily recommended not eligible.

Project Inventory No. 202

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218702.999,4701200.336

Exterior Materials: Stucco, Asphalt Shingles,

Looking east.

Preliminary Description: This house is a cross-gabled Minimal Traditional dwelling that is covered with stucco. It is not immediately clear if the stucco work was original, just historic-in-age, or modern. Its fenestration appears to be all or mostly modern in age, including some vinyl casement windows and some vinyl sash windows.

Preliminary Significance: The historic integrity of this house is mixed at best. It does not appear likely to represent significant architecture or historical associations. For these reasons, it is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Project Inventory No. 203

789431

UTMs (Z15,NAD83): 218781.75,4701181.00

Exterior Materials: Vinyl, Asphalt Shingle,

Concrete

Looking north.

Preliminary Description: This house has a gabled, asphalt-shingled roof. On its southeast corner is a small, hipped addition. Off its west wall is a substantial hipped wing or addition that is covered with stucco or parging. The house appears to have at least some wood, historic windows, though the siding appears to be mostly replaced or covered with vinyl. The house has a brick chimney that rises from the middle of its roof ridge. Off the southwest corner of the house is a hip-roofed garage with brick quoins and stucco or concrete parging walls. It has a wood garage door and another garage door opening that appears to be covered with wood siding. The garage has wood fenestration.

Looking north.

Preliminary Significance: The house and garage on this property are not likely to demonstrate significant elements of design or construction. The house has mixed historic integrity and does not appear to retain significant elements or ornamentation. The house does not appear likely to demonstrate significant associations to people or events of the past. For these reasons, the house is recommended preliminarily not eligible for the NRHP.

It also is not likely to hold associations to significant people or events of the past. For these reasons, the subject house is preliminarily recommended not eligible for the NRHP.

Discussion: The area of Dakota City, Nebraska that falls within the current buffer area contains a considerable number of historic-age residences and a few other property types. In sum, there were one-hundred-and-fourteen resources reviewed at the reconnaissance level, all within the buffer area and all about 45-years-of-age or older. Of these resources, ten were recommended preliminarily eligible or potentially eligible with further inquiry:

- Proj. Inv. No. 105
- Proj. Inv. No. 137
- Proj. Inv. No. 160
- Proj. Inv. No. 163
- Proj. Inv. No. 166
- Proj. Inv. No. 169
- Proj. Inv. No. 170
- Proj. Inv. No. 178
- Proj. Inv. No. 181
- Proj. Inv. No. 186

Of these, all but two are residences. Two are commercial buildings from about the turn of the 20th-century.

The area contains very little to no capacity to host a potential historic district. The houses in the town retain less than ideal historic integrity on the whole, the continuity or historic unifying fabric is less than ideal in most areas, and they are infilled with modern buildings. For these reasons, no potential historic district was pursued for Dakota City, Nebraska.

The Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Project Inventory No. 105, is already NRHP-listed.

Modern resources of this area are listed in Appendix C.

CONCLUSION & RECOMMENDATIONS

A total of 215 properties/sites were examined at the reconnaissance or intensive level as a part of the current historical-architectural survey. Some resources within or immediately adjacent to the APE were investigated at the intensive level via Iowa Site Inventory Forms. Three total sites were inventoried in such a way, though none were ultimately found to be NRHP-eligible. All others were considered at the reconnaissance level within this report. All modern resources within the airport and airbase portions of the survey area are included in embedded tables. The modern resources outside the airport and airbase area listed in a table in Appendix C.

Of the 215 resources, a total of twenty-three are recommended preliminarily eligible or for further research. Additionally, two potential historic districts (ISIF Nos. 97-04251 and 97-05901) that had been previously recommended eligible were surveyed. One of these appears to retain very good historic integrity and was recommended preliminarily eligible here, in concurrence with previous work. The other, however, has seen the loss of some contributing resources in the 21st century, and has therefore been recommended for further research when and if needed. These twenty-three resources and two-potential historic districts are included in the management summary below (Table 2); a map of them can be found in the additional documentation of this survey. All resources that were recommended NRHP-eligible in some capacity or for further research sit within the buffer area and are therefore very unlikely to have direct impacts by the proposed runway expansion project. They may, however, be found to have indirect impacts related to the expansion or alteration of flight paths (the result of runway expansions), such as sound, vibration, or visual impacts.

One building (Proj. Inv. No. 102) has already been listed in the NRHP.

In concurrence with previous inventories, there is not likely to be an overall, air-related historic district in this area. The airport/airfield is simply too heavily modified. This is the case because very many historic buildings have been removed, and many that remain have been altered. This is also because of the extensive construction of modern resources throughout.

Modern resources were abundant and infilled much of the area. Modern resources of aviation/air-related function area included in Table 2 and Table 3 of this report. Others of this age within the buffer area are listed in Appendix C. These were not assigned project inventory numbers.

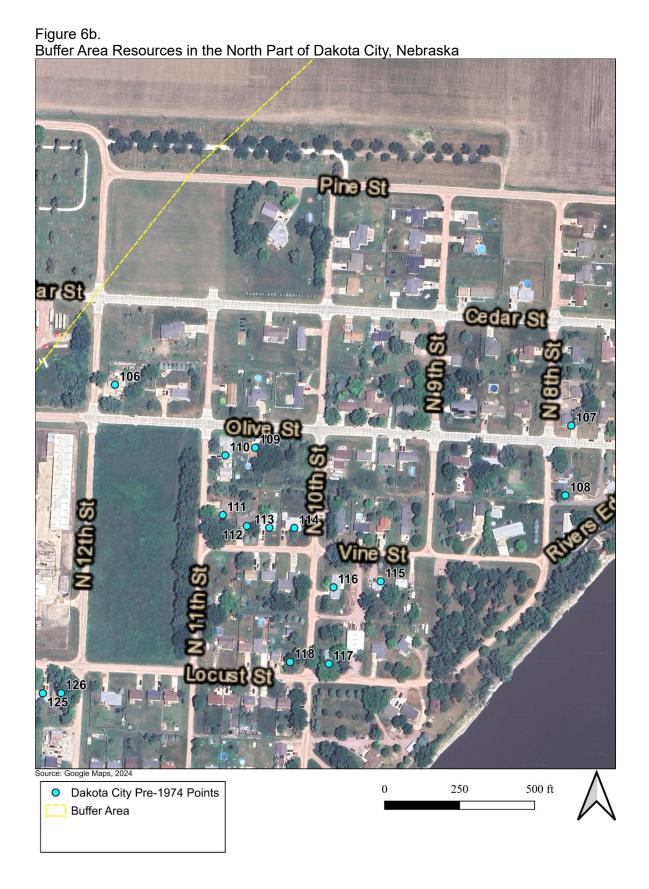

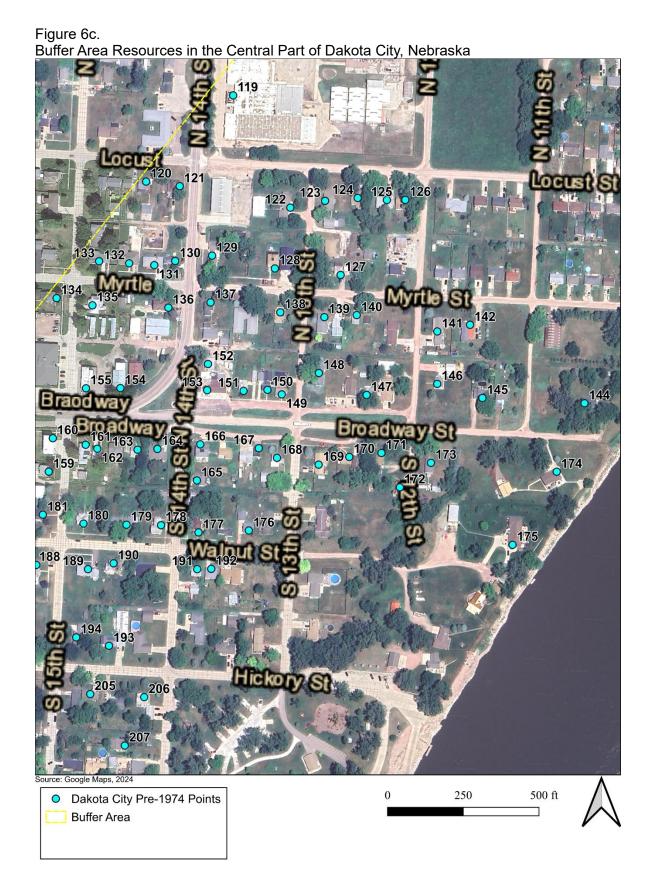

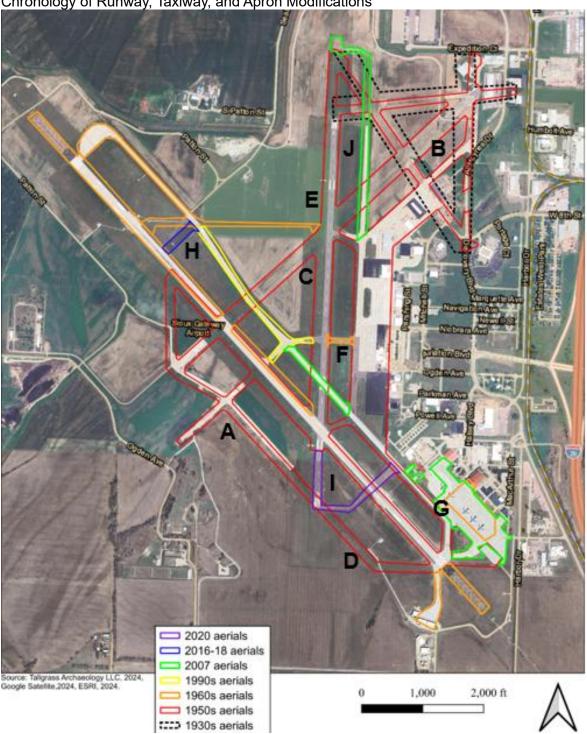

Figure 7.
Chronology of Runway, Taxiway, and Apron Modifications

Very little of the 1950s pavement remains, except in the southwest section (A). Much of the 1950s runway material and other parts have been removed altogether (B, C, D) or repaved/replaced (E). Much of the pavement of the aprons has also been replaced in the modern era (F, G), which includes the removal of some sections and replacement with turf. Outright modern additions have also been common (H, I, J). Dotted 1930 lines represent early municipal airport runways, grass at first and slowly developed into concrete.

Overviews of Pre-WWII Municipal Airport Hospital and Barracks THIS VIEW ILLUSTRATES COMING EXPANSION—This fine view of the municipal airport, taken on the day of its dedication, gives an excellent idea of the expansion due for Sioux City when Uncle Sam takes over the field. All runways at the airport will be extended to meet the requirements of the army's "flying fortresses," which will be used here.

7. Narrative Description

The subject structures are a series of culverts along an earthen ditch that runs along the north part of the Sioux Gateway Airport, south of Sioux City, Woodbury County, Iowa. The ditch itself is an earthen excavation that is dotted with metal and concrete culverts of various ages. Some areas of the ditch are lined or crossed by the airports perimeter fencing, but these are not considered as part of the system. There are a few areas of the ditch that have been lined with riprap.

The initial ditches were dug here circa 1960 during or near the same time as a significant runway expansion project. At that time, the ditch ran roughly along its current alignment with some small changes made in the vicinity of Expedition Ct and Seaboard Triumph Parkway, when they were built circa 2002 and a larger re-alignment from near the north end of Runway 13-31 to the Missouri River in about 2005. This change took the original alignment that crossed southwest along the end of the stopway thence more westerly to the river to a more direct route. The modern route is a straight ditch leading directly toward the river.

There are at least six culverts along this ditch per a preliminary review of aerial and satellite images. All but one of these culverts was accessed and visually confirmed present in the field survey. The one that was not seen during the fieldwork was the one farthest west, nearest the Missouri River. These structures appear to be of simple, standardized design with little to no available significance. Mostly of corrugated metal, round forms or concrete. At least one of them is modern in age.

5	Al Haynes Dr.	Concrete	Double, box, tapered walls	ca. 2020
6	Near Aviation Museu	m Concrete	Single, box, tapered walls	ca. 2005

Culvert No. 2 appears to be the one in question as part of the current runway expansion program.

In addition to these six structures, there are innumerable tile and drainage outlets that feed the ditch from the broader airfield. These are often small and unnoticed or covered by vegetation. These were not enumerated for this project.

8. Statement of Significance

These structures are part of the ongoing operation of the Sioux Gateway Airport airfield and related functions. They serve the purpose of keeping the airfield well drained and safe/functional.

The first of them appear in the 1960s historic aerial photographs and appear to be constructed at about the same time as a significant runway expansion program. As noted above, the west end of the ditch, nearest to the Missouri River, was modified around 2005. At that time, its course was straightened toward the river. Culvert Nos. 1 and 2 on the table above were a part of that older, indirect alignment. Other modifications were made to the drainage ditch's eastern part in the early 2000s, when road or driveway construction necessitated it. This was when culvert Nos. 3, 4, and 6 were added. Culvert No. 5 was added circa 2020, with the expansion of Al Haynes Dr.

The system appears to have poor historic integrity overall. The material integrity is varied throughout the system, with a number of realignments and new culvert installations that have occurred throughout the modern era. The design is also patchwork, and there is very little that represents the craftsmanship of a master, with the earthen excavation and laying of standardized culvert materials not required highly skilled labor. Despite these aspects, there is a certain degree of design integrity, with the intent and function remaining the same. The integrity of location is good in some segments, though again, there are certain areas with realignments. The system has good integrity of association, with the Sioux Gateway Airport function, ownership, and maintenance. The setting and feeling integrity of the ditch is fairly good, all things considered, as they contribute to the expansive view over the broad, flat airbase, and are often in proximity to the runways and other features related to its ongoing operation. Despite changes to the surrounding buildings, it still feels very much like an airport.

The function and design of the ditch, the culverts, and the many smaller tile and drain pieces all appear to be simple and standard in design and function. They are therefore recommended not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion C.

The ditch is indeed functional and useful for the ongoing operations here, but they are not significant to a level that warrants eligibility for the National Register of Historic Places. They are simple, standard designs, much like those ditches seen along county and state roads across the state and nation. Their function is in a way essential or valuable to the Sioux Gateway airport, but they do not express the historic nature of the operation; in other words, the ditch and component parts do not communicate any historically significant part of the operation. For these reasons, and because of the generally poor historic integrity, the drainage system and the component parts are recommended not eligible for the National Register of Historic places under Criteria A or B.

There is no potential historic district in which it could be considered a resource.

7. Narrative Description

The subject structures are a series of culverts along an earthen ditch that runs along the south part of the Sioux Gateway Airport, south of Sioux City, Woodbury County, Iowa. The ditch itself is an earthen excavation with significant vegetation in some areas. It is dotted with metal and concrete culverts. Some areas of the ditch are lined or crossed by the airports perimeter fencing, but these are not considered as part of the system.

The history of this drainage system dates back to the 1950s and 60s with the expansion of the airfield at that time. Smaller systems were in place then, and the only segment of the ditch that may be a remnant of that generation is the north-reaching length along Harbor Drive, though it does appear to have undergone some modifications. The older system, especially along the east part of it, appears to have been tied into a natural stream or ditch to the southeast, but in the modern era it has been straightened and enlarged. The construction of the interstate in the 1960s and 70s also impacted water flow and water management in that part of the survey area; in about 1970, a triple culvert was created to pass under the interstate and a single one nearby drained the ditch along the interstate and railroad grade. Other areas were re-aligned and or enlarged. For instance, the large ditch running along what is now Sully Avenue was not built until circa 1990, along with many of the culvert structures along the system, it replaced a smaller ditch that ran along that road and ran to the river since about the 1950s or 60s.

There are at least eleven culverts along this ditch per a preliminary review of aerial and satellite images. Most were confirmed in person during the April 2024 field survey or through the examination of recent satellite images. The farthest west, nearest the Missouri River was not confirmed during said survey, and some others were partially or mostly covered by grasses.

The structures most in question regarding the current runway expansion program are Nos. 12 through 15.

In addition to these eleven structures, there are innumerable tile and drainage outlets that feed the ditch from the broader airfield and surrounding areas. These are often small and unnoticed or covered by vegetation. These were not enumerated for this project.

These structures are part of the ongoing operation of the Sioux Gateway Airport airfield and related functions. They serve the purpose of keeping the airfield well drained and safe/functional.

The first of them appear in the historic aerials in the late 1950s or early 1960s. As noted above, these were generally smaller ditches, and they were generally re-aligned and/or enlarged over time. The north arm along Harbor Drive may be of that era, however some of the culverts within it appear to have been placed later. For instance, No. 15 on the map below appears to have been put in place circa 1970 to coincide with other airfield changes, with Nos. 13 and 14 added in the modern era. No. 17 also appears to have been part of the circa 1970 changes. No. 16, closest to the air operations buildings appears to have been an upgrade made in the late-20th century as well. The ditch alignment along Sully Avenue, west toward the river is a modern enlargement of the ditch. It and its related culverts (Nos. 7 through 11) appear to have been put in place circa 1990. Culvert No. 12, which could be a replacement for a former culvert that connected to the waterway system to the south previously. Other re-alignments, especially in the vicinity of the interstate and at the west end have been made in the modern era as well.

The system is mostly of modern design and construction. What is historic or likely historic appears to have poor historic integrity overall. The material integrity is varied throughout the system, with a number of realignments and new culvert installations that have occurred throughout the modern era. The design is also patchwork, and there is very little that represents the craftsmanship of a master, with the earthen excavation and laying of standardized culvert materials not required highly skilled labor. Despite these aspects, there is a certain degree of design integrity, with the intent and function remaining the same. The integrity of location is good in some segments, though again, there are certain areas with realignments. The system has good integrity of association, with the Sioux Gateway Airport function, ownership, and maintenance. The setting and feeling integrity of the ditch is fairly good, all things considered, as they contribute to the expansive view over the broad, flat airbase, and are often in proximity to the runways and other features related to its ongoing operation. Despite changes to the surrounding buildings, roadways, etc., it still feels very much like an airport.

The function and design of the ditch, the culverts, and the many smaller tile and drain pieces all appear to be simple and standard in design and function. They are therefore recommended not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion C.

Furthermore, the modern age of most of this ditch system appears to preclude it from National Register of Historic Places eligibility. What is historic within it has such poor integrity and is of such a simple, standardized design and commonplace function, that it does not represent a historically significant portion of the history here. In other words, this ditch and component parts do not communicate any historically significant part of the Sioux Gateway Airport Operation. For these reasons, and because of the generally poor historic integrity, the drainage system and the component parts are recommended not eligible for the National Register of Historic places under Criteria A or B.

There is no potential historic district in which it could be considered a resource.

7. Narrative Description

The subject airfield includes a number of paved runways, taxiways, and aprons. These have been added to, modified, and repaved over the years. The earliest pavement, in small segments in unused areas of the airfield still date to the circa-1950s and 1960s, but most are modern in age and have been repaved and added in parts. Some segments have been reduced, and others even removed. An outline of these various paved components can be seen in Figures 4 and 5. This mass of pavement constitutes the site.

The subject airfield also contains a large number of directional and communicative structures and objects. These are not enumerated here, but samples of them have been included in the additional photographs below. A vast majority of these structures and objects are modern in age.

The modification and expansion of some of these runways are the subject of the current Sioux Gateway Runway Expansion Program undertaking. Some of the related structures and objects will likely be impacted as well, in terms of removal, relocation, etc.

8. Statement of Significance

A Century of Air Transportation At this Location

Discussion of a municipal airport in Sioux City began in the late 1920s. At the time, there were two existing privately owned airfields near Sioux City. In 1928, both airports near Sioux City began making improvements, possibly preparing to match the competition of a new municipal airport, and that year, the municipal airport committee chose a location. The site selected was described as being "between the tracks of Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railway and the Missouri River, one and one-half miles south of the Floyd monument" (The Sioux City Journal 3/17/1928:7; The Sioux City Sunday Journal 12/30/1928:12; The Sioux City Journal 8/24/1928:1). Finally, in 1937, the people of Sioux City voted for a $100,000 bond for the purchase of property and the construction of the airport. The property was purchased in 1938 at $150 per acre for a total of 75 acres. C.O. and Minnie Gould sold the property to the city. The site purchased is the site of the current airport. With approval from President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the WPA constructed the airport with a total of $145,329 going toward funding the WPA work on the project.

Despite the excitement about the new airport, a little over a year later, the airport largely ceased functioning as a municipal airport and began operating as an airbase for the United States Air Corps. By December 29, 1941, it was decided that the war department would lease the airport from Sioux City for one dollar per year. Sioux City began to move forward toward acquiring additional land for the airbase, and the businessmen of the city were eager to contribute money for the purchase if necessary. The farmers of the Sergeant Bluff area were considerably less enthusiastic, saying that while the goal of the army base was to contribute to the national war effort: "In view of the food for freedom program, the destruction of 2,000 acres of the most productive land in the United States represents a great waste of national resources" (Sioux City Public Library 1940-1945). The farmers ultimately lost the land surrounding the base, and construction of a base for bomber training commenced in 1942. The base was built with the capacity for three hundred fifty officers and 3,000 trainees. Eventually, the number of buildings on the base totaled around two hundred, and included an officer's club, two churches, barracks, officer's quarters, administrative buildings, a theater, a hospital, Women's Army Corp (WAC) buildings and quarters, and mess halls. The runways were expanded 2,000 feet making them around 8,000 feet long. As America joined the war efforts in the European theater in the 1940s, Sioux City became the site of an Army air base (Giddings 2017; Sioux City Public Museum 2024). The Sioux City Army Air Base was built in 1942 as a training location for bomber crews to prepare for overseas combat. The Iowa History Journal reported that the Chief of the US Army Air Corp, General Hap Arnold established four principles for the selection of new training sites following direction from then President Franklin D. Roosevelt to "beef up" America's defense organization. The established principles included the "conservation of funds, materials and national effort; efficiency of operation; maximum use of available facilities; and elimination of non-essentials" (Huisman 2022).

In February 1947, the Air National Guard also began using the airbase for training. At this point, Sioux City was also operating the airport as a municipal airport again. On October 11, 1947, Sioux City purchased eight-hundred acres containing one hundred thirty buildings from the government, with a clause stating that the government could reclaim the airbase if necessary. Sioux City also recovered all land that had been leased by the city to the government at the airbase (Sioux City Public Library 1940-1945; Sioux City Public Library 1946-1949; Sioux City Public Library 1950-1954).

During the time when Sioux City operated the airport post-WWII, the airport thrived, and the city chose to build a $470,000 new control tower, administration, and terminal building. This building was 85 feet tall with six stories.

While the airbase operated, the municipal airport remained open. This dual operation occasionally led to conflicts between the city and the airbase operation, and other times led to mutual improvements of the site. The first conflict occurred in 1953 when the new airport tower was completed, and the Airforce announced their intention of using it as part of a base expansion. However, this was resolved when cutbacks occurred, and the expansion was cancelled. In 1959, the city had to receive permission from the Airforce to open up a new road which they had constructed going straight from Highway 29 to the terminal, reducing confusion for airport visitors. However, the two worked through the issue with the Airforce ultimately taking charge of the road construction that needed to be completed on 7th Street, while the city saw to it that the 7th Street main gate of the airbase was moved to 6th Street along with the security fence. In 1962, the main runway was expanded again, an undertaking mostly funded by the National Guard, but conducted under the supervision of the Sioux City Engineering Department. Part of the same project included in-runway lighting, an improvement that only one other airport in the country, LaGuardia International, had undertaken at this time (Sioux City Public Library 1950-1954; Sioux City Public Library 1950s; Sioux City Public Library 1960s). At this time, the runway was resurfaced, the runway lights were replaced, and the taxiway was expanded. Within a year, new construction was being considered because an increase in business at the airport was leading to a crowded terminal. That year, more parking was added to the north of the terminal, and plans were made to demolish a WWII hangar to further increase parking spaces. More renovations to the terminal were done between 1987-1988, although the exact nature of the changes is unclear. In 1988, plans for a four-million-dollar airport tower were announced. The tower would no longer be situated on the top of the terminal where it resided at that time. A hanger and another smaller building were demolished to make way for the new tower. The new tower was completed in 1992, and that same year, the control tower on top of the terminal was demolished.

Around 2005 and 2006, aerial maps show the runways changing further. A section of lanes attached to the north end of the north-south runway fades significantly during these years, and it appears likely that a portion of these lanes were removed at this time (Iowa Geographic Map Server 2024).

Statement of Integrity

The airfield site retains poor overall historic integrity. Its materials are mostly replacements. The paved areas of the field have been modified, added to, and removed over in various sections over the years, though there are reportedly some patches of 1950s and 1960s pavement intact. These sections are mostly peripheral and unused. Notably, many of the directional/communication equipment objects are modern. The replacement and ongoing modifications hinder any integrity of craftsmanship that there could have been. The design is generally intact though, as replacement runways, taxiways, and other features conform to strict guidelines and follow the pre-determined routes. The integrity of setting and feeling are mixed, as much of the surrounding has likewise been modified over the years. However, it also remains very much the same with a strong sense that this is an airport provided by the various hangars, terminal, and other buildings in the vicinity. The feeling is one of a modern airport, and less so one that feels like a mid-20th century airport and airbase operation. The airfield site retains good integrity of association, which is supported by its retention by the City of Sioux City over time and its functionality for commercial, private, and military air transportation. The airfield retains good integrity of location, by virtue of it being located where it was in the last century, with some expansions over the decades.

Conclusions

There does not appear to be an eligible or potentially eligible historic district to which this airfield would contribute. Many buildings and structures around the airfield have been evaluated. Many have been given recommendations of not eligible, and many others are modern in age.

For these reasons and because of their overall poor historic integrity, the Sioux Gateway Airport – Airfield and its component parts are recommended not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

Additional Documentation THIS VIEW ILLUSTRATES COMING EXPANSION—This fine view of the municipal airport, taken on the day of its dedican, gives an excellent idea of the expansion due for Sioux City when Uncle Sam takes over the field. All runways at the airport will extended to meet the requirements of the army's "flying fortresses," which will be used here.

Outright modern additions have also been common (H, I, J). Dotted 1930 lines represent early municipal airport runways, grass at first and slowly developed into concrete

CONFIDENTIALITY STATEMENT

Information contained in this report relating to the nature and location of archaeological sites is considered private and confidential and not for public disclosure in accordance with Section 304 of the National Historic Preservation Act (54 U.S.C. § 307103); 36 CFR Part 800.6 (a)(5) of the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation's rules implementing Sections 106 and 110 of the Act; Section 9(a) of the Archaeological Resource Protection Act (54 U.S.C. § 100707) and, Chapter 22.7, subsection 20 of the Iowa Code.

ABSTRACT

Tallgrass Archaeology LLC of Iowa City, Iowa, conducted an Intensive Phase I Archaeological Investigation for the Sioux Gateway Airport Runway Program in Sioux City, Iowa. This project was completed for RS&H, on behalf of the Sioux Gateway Airport. The project area is centered on Runway 13-31 and associated taxiways and facilities within the Sioux Gateway Airport. This study assessed the cultural resource potential of the 708.8-acre (286.8-hectare) project area. The current investigation involved a pedestrian survey of a harvested agricultural field and the excavation of 494 subsurface tests in low ground surface visibility areas. This investigation documented prior ground disturbances associated with farming during the historic period and earthmoving associated with the construction of the Army Air Corps base and subsequent development of the Sioux Gateway Airport facilities across most of the project area.

Three archaeological sites were identified within the project area. Sites 13WD254 and 13WD255 represent the remains of two farmsteads that were removed around the time of the construction of the Sioux City Army Air Base. Site 13WD256 represents the remains of a small structure dating to the turn of the twentieth century. Sites 13WD254, 13WD255, and 13WD256 are recommended to be considered not eligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places. No further archaeological investigations are recommended for these sites or the currently proposed project area.
